STATE ENDS WARD EVIDENCE

"POGO GIRL" IS SECRET BRIDE SECOND TIME

GENEVA MITCHELL

Former wife of "Bob" Savage of Yale who quit him on honeymoon and who featured in Back Bay revel, has married Jack Hayes, advance agent for vaudeville act.

Geneva Mitchell, one-day bride of young "Bob" Savage of Yale, has been secretly married again. Geneva's husband this time is Jack Hayes, advance agent for Ernie Evans' Dancing Dolls, a vaudeville act now appearing in Cleveland.

Information received in Boston today by friends of the famous "Pogo Girl" revealed the fact that Geneva had slipped away from her watchful mamma last Sunday night and was married at Ripley, New York, by a minister. Geneva's mother heard of

Seek to Connect Hub Blackmail Ring With Death of "Dot" King

Was Lester Fogg, the Arthur LeBarron charged with attempting to blackmail Mrs. Nathaniel F. Emmons, Back Bay society beauty and once "Angel of the Yankee Division," a member of the blackmail ring believed responsible for the death some months back of "Dot" King, the orchid of the Tenderloin?

New York authorities today wired Boston police for full information concerning Fogg.

Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora, who handled the investigation of "Dot" King's death, which brought to light her friendship with John K. Mitchell, Philadelphia money baron, who married into the famous Stokesbury family, said today a Boston man suspected of blackmail had been under suspicion in the murder of the Manhattan beauty.

"Dot" King was found dead in her Tenderloin apartment. Her real name was Dorothy Keenan. Her murderer has never been arrested. He is believed to have belonged to a

MISS EUNICE FITZGERALD

FITZGERALD'S DAUGHTER, EUNICE, DEAD

Eunice Fitzgerald, youngest daughter of Boston's former Mayor, John F. Fitzgerald, died today.

Late Monday she was brought from Saranac Lake, N. Y., to the family home at No. 39 Welles avenue, Dorchester. Death came as the family was gathered about her bedside today.

Miss Fitzgerald was young and decidedly pretty. She had been ill for more than a year. Into the family home today poured telegrams and telephone calls of condolence to the family.

Miss Fitzgerald's passing came indirectly from the war. A tireless worker while the great struggle was

STATE QUITS IN TRIAL OF WARD

Springs Surprise on Defence; Prisoner's Release, However, Was Refused by Judge

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 25.—The State has made a case against Walter S. Ward sufficiently strong to warrant his standing further trial and having to defend himself against the charges that he murdered Clarence S. Peters of Haverhill, it was decided by Justice Robert F. Wagner here today.

The court denied a long list of motions presented by Ward's attorneys for dismissal of the indictment against him. Another motion, requesting the court to direct a verdict of not guilty, likewise was denied.

Denial of the motions followed the closing of the State's case.

Immediately after the State rested, Ward's attorneys were on their feet with the motions, but after brief argument they were denied, and the case will go on, but it is adjourned till tomorrow morning.

DAY OF SURPRISES.

The action of the State prosecutor in resting his case shortly after the court opened today came with dramatic suddenness, since it had been expected presentation of State evidence would take at least several days more.

The first surprise of the morning came when Ralph Ward who, it was rumored in the court room, was to have been called as a witness, was instead invited into the conference of attorneys in Judge Wagner's chambers. It was after this conference that the prosecution made its decision to rest the case.

Walter Ward's wife was in court and when the State announcement was made and court adjourned she was surrounded by friends.

"Oh, I am so glad it is over; I am sure they will acquit Walter," Mrs. Ward said. "The State did not present a case at all. But how could they, for Walter is an innocent man."

"I am sure the jury will acquit

TROOPS ARE READY TO FIGHT KLANSMEN

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 25 (I.N.S.)—With "zero hour" approaching—in fact only 24 hours away—general headquarters of Oklahoma's lawless legislators in the Skirvin Hotel was in a tumult of excitement today.

The assembled legislators were "rarin' to go." The "march on the Capitol" apparently couldn't begin too soon to suit any of them.

More troops to back up the Governor's edict were mobilized today.

Governor J. C. (Iron Jack) Walton's latest edict to the military

VICTIM GOES TO HOSPITAL

Row Over Girl Starts Fight That Ends When One Slashes the Other

Frank Bartlett, eight years old, a pupil at the Walnut Street School, Neponset, was stabbed by Matthew Slater, eleven years old, another scholar, today while they were on their way to school.

Young Bartlett was taken to the City Hospital. He was sent to the X-ray room for an examination to determine the extent of his injuries. Hospital physicians said he would live.

The lads quarrelled over a girl.

Frank Bartlett lives at No. 46 Walnut street, Neponset. Matthew Slater lives at No. 6 Norfolk street, Neponset.

The boys were walking to the Walnut street school, where they are pupils, when they got into the argument over the girl, Slater, according to the police of Station No. 11, accused Bartlett of "taking his girl away from him." Bartlett said Slater "lied."

Thereupon, according to the police, Slater drew a small-sized jack knife from his pocket. He swung on Bartlett. The latter fell with a stab wound in his abdomen.

GIRL KILLED BY CAR WHILE RUNNING TO SEE MEN FIGHT

While running to see a fist fight between two men across the street from her home, six-year-old Christina Compagnone of No. 6 Fellows court, South End, was struck and instantly killed by a City Point car on Northampton street. The motorman of the car, Thomas Spillane, is being held on a technical charge of manslaughter by the police of the East Dedham street station. Firemen were called to lift the car and extricate the body.

The child was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Compagnone.

JUSTIFIES CAPITALISM BUT POINTS ITS FAULTS

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 24.—Denouncing various shades of radicalism in an address before the convention of the American Bankers Association today, J. H. Puelicher, president of the association, said "Socialism, communism, anarchism, syndicalism and J. W. Wiism are seeking to make converts in their attacks upon the very foundation of our government."

He justified the capitalistic system as having brought to all the people more comfort and greater leisure than any other system thus far tried but at the same time pointed out what he characterized as its evils. He declared there should be no child labor, no seven days labor week, no unduly long hours of labor and no

ARTICLE X REVISION KILLED BY LONE VOTE OF PERSIA

Geneva, Sept. 25 (AP)—The proposed resolution for the interpretation of Article X of the League of Nations covenant was rejected by the league assembly in plenary session today. Persia alone voted against the resolution, but a unanimous vote was necessary to obtain the assembly's approval.

The "interpretation" of Article X that had been approved by the league council in substance provided that each power should decide for itself the measures it should take in case of attack on any other member and should not be compelled to enter into any such dispute or war.

Greek and other delegates had favored the resolution because, they asserted, it would facilitate the entry of the United States into the League.

SAFE CRACKERS IN SECOND RAID ON POSTOFFICE AT UNITY, ME.

Unity, Maine, Sept. 25.—The safe in the Unity branch of the Waldo Trust Company of Belfast was blown open early today for the second time in five weeks.

When the discovery was made it was found the doors had been locked again or the lock broken so that it was not possible to open the safe.

About $1,800 was obtained in the previous robbery. The amount stolen this time has not been made known.

CHECK USELESS LAW-MAKING, LANGE TELLS CONVENTION

Springfield, Sept. 25.—Our legislative halls "cannot long remain mad-houses of paternalism, a bedlam of careless lawgivers," the affiliated Exchange Clubs were told today by Ray L. Lange of Birmingham, Ala., national president.

"The apathy of our citizenship must be overcome," he declared in his address to the national convention. "There must be a barking back to the principle that the least governed are the best governed." He congrat-

Only one witness had been called today, Walter S. Ferris, an assistant District Attorney of Westchester County, who for three or four minutes answered interrogation about some county records in connection with the case.

Attorney General Sherman had announced he had many more witnesses to call, including Ralph Ward, John Olsen, former superintendent of the apartment house in New York where Ward."

What the State Has Proved Against Walter Ward

White Plains, N. Y., 25.—The States case against Ward has produced these facts:

1.—Ward killed Peters.

2.—Peters was a stranger Ward of less than nine hours' acquaintanceship when he was slain.

3.—Ward, although a police official, did not admit his act until five days after the shooting and after Peters' body had been identified.

4.—If Ward negaged in a gun battle, as he alleged, the night before the killing with members of the blackmail gang, Peters was not a member of the party, for the Haverhill boy fas then on a train coming from Richmond, Va.

Ward is said to have maintained a "love nest," and other witnesses who were to testify that Ward "participated in a blackmail plot against his father."

After today's action Sherman said he had no further explanation to make than that "I believe the evidence has convicted Walter S"

FORD'S RIVAL BUYS MUSCLE SHOALS PLANT

Washington, Sept. 25.—The United States Government has sold to the Alabama Power Company for $3,472,457.25, cash, the Gorgas Steam Plant and Transmission Line of the Muscle Chioals Power System, it was announced by Secretary of War Weeks.

The Gorgas plant was built during the war at cost to the government of $4,750,000. It is situated on property owned by the Alabama Power Company on the Warrior River, eight-eight miles south of the Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals. It has been operated by the Alabama Company under lease from the government.

The sale was virtually a foreclosure under an option to purchase the Alabama Company claimed it had from the government in its original contract for erection of the plant.

The sale will have an important bearing on Henry Ford's proposal to lease the Muscle Shoals system. He contended the Gorgas plant and power line was essential to the success of his plans of development.

20 Minutes Required to Make Phone Call in Lynn Accident

Lynn, Sept. 25.—Inability to put through a telephone call prevented Mrs. Florence McLaughlin, No. 39 Pearl street, from receiving medical attention after she had fallen in a faint on Union street.

Pedestrians carried her into a nearby store. After trying more than twenty minutes to obtain response from a telephone operator, they were compelled to try five pay stations before they obtained police headquarters on the telephone.

SEIZE 7 MEN AND LIQUOR AT GUN POINT

Providence, Sept. 25.—Five Federal prohibition agents with drawn guns arrested seven men and seized Scotch whiskey valued at $5,000 at Longmeadow, Warwick. The men are believed to be the bootleg clique supplying the exclusive set in this city with their wet goods.

The liquor was in a motor truck. It was loaded from a skiff near a Longmtadow fish market. Five trips were made from a larger boat to shore. As the last bottle was loaded into the truck the agents sprang from ambush. "Hands up," was their command. The men surrendered.

They gave their names as Walter Emmons, 43; Herbert Gardine, 63, and William D. Haven, 36, of Longmeadow, Joseph Rosenfield, 22, Sixth street; Peter Cordulo, 23, Chalkstone avenue; Louis Regimo, 22, Dean street, and Benjamin L. Sass, 28, Ninth street, Providence.

NEW U. S. SEAPLANE IN SCHNEIDER RACE

Portsmouth, Eng., Sept. 25.—The American reserve seaplane piloted by Lieutenant Frank W. Wead will be substituted in the Schneider Cup race for seaplanes on Sept. 28 for the plane wrecked yesterday near Portsmouth during a trial flight. The United States will thus be represented by three machines, the original number, but the chances of England for retaining the cup are regarded by the experts as greatly increased owing to the fact that the wrecked plane was America's most powerful entry, said to be capable of making 170 miles an hour.

WILLARD IS FOR COMBINE, BUT NOT WITH B. & O.

The properties of every railroad in New England should be consolidated into a regional group with one responsible directing head, Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, declared before the Interstate Commerce Commission today at Ford Hall.

Mr. Willard spoke as an interested witness at hearings which will probably determine whether the railroads of New England will be compelled to sell the various trunk lines, or will be consolidated and operated as one great system.

"I am of that opinion," said Mr. Willard, "that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad should not be included in the Baltimore & Ohio system.

"I am opposed to a partial grouping of the New England railroads because it would prevent the accomplishment of a great economy which could only be realized by consolidating all the lines."

Mr. Willard's speech to the commission indicated that his views and those of the Storrow committee, appointed by the Governors of six New England States to investigate the railroad situation and propose a remedy for its faults, coincided in almost all points.

Mark Sullivan, corporation counsel of Boston clashed sharply with Mr. Willard at the conclusion of his speech when he questioned him about the export differential freight rates.

"In view of your marks interest in the prosperity of the New England railroads, how do you justify the amount of the export differential freight rates, which are pauperizing the railroads of New England and throttling the port of Boston?" he asked.

BALTIMORE MUST HAVE IT

"I justify it by the fact the Baltimore is 240 miles nearer Chicago than is Boston and that Liverpool is 500 miles closer to Boston than it is to Baltimore," Mr. Willard replied. "Baltimore must have a differential freight rate or it cannot get any export business."

He was about to continue when Chairman Hall of the Interstate Commerce Commission interrupted.

"This matter is not pertinent to this hearing," he said. "The commission already is considering the question of freight differentials, with the testimony all in."

Mr. Willard created a mild sensation when he urged that the Boston & Albany and the Central Vermont railroads be included in the New England consolidation. These roads were excluded in the report of the Storrow committee.

MOTHER DIES IN SAVING BABY

Calais, Me., Sept. 25.—Mrs. Charles Woods, twenty-two-year-old mother, today saved her baby from an upstairs room of their burning home, carried the infant to the home of a neighbor and collapsed. She died of burns a few hours later.

Mrs. Woods was frying doughnuts in the kitchen of her home at Milltown, near here, when the fat ignited and her clothing took fire. The burning grease spread flames about the room and the dwelling was threatened with destruction.

$100,000 IN SUITS ON PIGGLY-WIGGLY

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 25.—Three suits aggregating approximately $100,000, were filed here against Clarence Saunders and the Piggly Wiggly Corporation, of which he was formerly president, by two New Orleans securities companies and two local concerns. One was for $84,750 to recover on notes said to have been given as commissions on loans placed for Saunders and two smaller sums were for printing and advertising for the corporation and Piggly Wiggly Stores Inc.

JAPS NEED 3 BILLION FEET OF LUMBER

Seattle, Sept. 25.—Five hundred thousand dwellings are to be built in Japan and this will require 3,000,000,000 feet of lumber, according to estimates received by the West Coast Lumbermen's Association from the United States Department of Commerce. The Department of Commerce communication said that sixty per cent. of this lumber requirements must come from American ports.

Policeman Wants Job Back

Lawrence, Sept. 25.—Frank L. Dwyer, former police officer, removed several months ago by Commissioner Peter Carr on charges of misconduct, will again fight for reinstatement. This fact became known when Fred H. Magison, Haverhill lawyer, entered an appearance in the local court for the petitioner in an action against Commissioner Carr.

Auto Thief Gives Victim Ride In His Own Car

Webster, Sept. 25.—"Easy go, easy come," said Ernest Wallace, former Superintendent of Highways, when an automobile thief invited him to ride in his own automobile.

Mr. Wallace chatted pleasantly with the driver of his machine on the trip from East Douglas to Uxbridge. A traffic cop turned his "stop" sign on the machine and J. E. Dragon, of East Douglas, was turned over to the driver of a police patrol.

they had read—"shoot to kill, if necessary." It said—"but don't let them meet."

Newspaper extras emblazoned the news: "All classes called to colors. Citizen soldiers between twenty-one and forty-five ordered held in readiness to stop legislature from meeting."

WILL DEFY GOVERNOR.

The "war correspondents" had received instructions to obtain special military passes to permit them to enter the "battle lines" at the Capitol tomorrow. The regular military passes which had permitted them to stay out after midnight with Oklahoma City under martial law will not do.

"Iron Jack," as military commander of the military forces of Oklahoma, had thrown down his final challenge to what he terms the "Ku Klux Klan Legislature." Not in its history, even in the days of the red men and the old wild West, was Oklahoma experiencing such a thrill.

"Lawless legislators" who up to now had treated the situation with some levity have suddenly become serious.

"I will walk into the mouth of a cannon for a principle," said W. I. Cunningham.

W. D. McBee, who issued the call for the legislative assembly, had no official communique to issue, but he did say this:

"We will meet, or go to jail."

While twenty-four hours ago the legislators had intended going to the Capitol singly and in small groups, they now plan to go en masse. They will hold a caucus tonight and arrange definitely their course of action.

At about 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, according to the present plan as outlined by McBee, the legislators will leave general headquarters in automobiles, four or five in each car. There probably will be about fifteen or twenty machines. They will proceed directly to the Capitol, a distance of about three miles.

ALL ARE FACING ARREST.

If they are allowed to meet, they will at once go ahead with their plan to impeach the Governor.

"What if you are stopped and arrested?" McBee was asked. "Governor Walton has announced he is prepared to put the legislators in a stockade and keep them there."

"We'll demand our release on writs of habeas corpus," McBee replied.

It was pointed out to McBee that the Governor already set a precedent by suspending the right of habeas corpus.

"We'll go through this thing anyway," McBee countered. "No one has ever accused me of going before the show was over. Tomorrow Oklahoma's legislators are going to write history. I would like to see the man among us who would back down now—we'd draw a line through his name that would mark him indelibly in the history of our great State."

Councils of war were held by the legislators late into the night and early today. After each one, it was announced, they were "more determined than ever to assemble." As for the "shoot to kill" order, said Representative Boyer, one of the leaders, "we have men who have been on both ends of a gun."

at its heighth she overworked and lung trouble developed.

A year ago she was taken to the Rose Memorial Hospital in Montreal, where surgeons performed an operation in hopes of saving her life. The operation did not bring expected results and a second one was performed by Dr. Edward Archibald of the Royal Victoria Hospital.

This was reported successful. After recovering enough to travel the young woman was removed to Saranac Lake to convalesce. She had been there until Monday.

Miss Fitzgerald is survived by her parents, a brother and two sisters, Mrs. Joseph F. Kennedy and Miss Agnes Fitzgerald.

She was a graduate of the Mahattanville Academy, Manhattanville, N. Y. In November, 1919, she made her debut. Among messages of felicitation received at the time was one from Sir Thomas Lipton, long a friend of her father. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

EX-DRY AGENT RELATES THE 'BRIBE' TALK

"What about the Hotel Monat at Springfield?"

"What do you mean?"

"You're a d— fool. You'll only get a day's pay out of this job. You might as well get some real jack like the rest of the boys."

This was a conversation between Harold L. Harvey and Warren Fielding, prohibition agents in Springfield on January 3 last, Fielding testified in United States District Court today.

He appeared against Fielding charged with conspiracy and attempted bribery.

With Fielding on trial are John W. Roach of Springfield, Joseph Weisenberg and Adelman Grandchamp of Holyoke. They were interested in the bootlery and are alleged to have endeavored through bribery to prevent raids for illegal sale of intoxicants.

Behind the case is alleged to have been the machinations of a political machine ready to browbeat agents into ignoring booze conditions. Following an investigation the quartet was arrested and indicted by the Grand Jury.

Harvey on the first witness for the government today started what is expected to prove in the nature of fireworks concerning conditions among Federal sleuths said to be corrupt.

Harvey with another federal agent was recalled from the Springfield district more than a year ago following a scandal. He was later dropped from the federal sound.

Fielding said Harvey's proposal that he "take money" came from a cigar sky while they were on an auto ride in Springfield. The amount mentioned, he testified, was $230. "Come up to Holyoke and see Weisenberg." Fielding testified Harvey said.

BULGARIAN peasants marching 100,000 strong to put out the King and avenge their leader, lately murdered, have been defeated. That's the latest news. In the eighteenth century the peasants were against the revolution in France. Now they lead it in Bulgaria.

SOMETHING IS ABOUT to break in Germany. The end of printing imitation money has come. Something else must be done. Whether it will be revolution, complete submission to France, or something else no one knows. The suddenly rising value of the franc shows that high finance is betting on Poincare in the struggle.

AUTUMN HAS BEGUN, officially. Daylight saving, wherever it exists, ends at 2 o'clock next Sunday morning. For those that know that value of time, daylight saving lasts through the year and all through life. The night is long when it comes.

A MAN ASLEEP and drunk complains because thieves took his spectacles, false teeth and money.

That man shouldn't complain of thieves, but of the whiskey he drank. Whiskey is the champion thief, stealing not only money, but health, reputation, character, and finally life.

THE BANKERS in solemn convention call prohibition a failure. They look at it financially, and object to bootleggers collecting hundreds of millions that might have gone to the government and helped to keep taxes down had government continued its partnership with whiskey. Many prefer an end of that partnership to the money it brought in.

MRS. OLIVER BELMONT says: "For twenty centuries men have made a muddling job of the world and its government." Quite true, not only twenty centuries, but a hundred centuries.

But if Mrs. Belmont could realize how much men have improved in the centuries, she would have a more kindly feeling for the inferior male sex.

FOR INSTANCE, in Rochester, at the edge of the canal, a new-born naked male baby is found dead. Eight detectives are put on the case.

Two thousand years ago it was legal to leave new-born babies, dead or alive, scattered around anywhere. If dogs didn't eat them, anybody that found them could bring them up as slaves.

THE CHRISTIAN teaching that unbaptized babies can't go to heaven, which seems harsh to those that don't know how it began, saved the lives of thousands of infants.

The mothers, taught that they were jeopardizing an immortal soul by not having it baptized, stopped exposing the babies.

THE DEPARTMENT of Commerce, Bureau of Census, calculates the total wealth of the United States at about three hundred billions of dollars, three thousand dollars for every man, woman and child, nearly double the total wealth of 1912.

One hundred per cent. seems encouraging, and the Census Bureau figures may be technically accurate, but they don't mean anything.

WHEN LINCOLN was a boy, a healthy black man, unable to read but strong enough to handle a hoe, was worth a thousand dollars. The average inhabitant is worth a great deal more than three times that today.

One single IDEA might be worth three hundred billions—for instance, an idea supplying men with unlimited free power from sun or tides.

There are many times three hundred billions worth of wealth below the earth in mines, oil, gas, coal, and in the earth's thin crop producing carpet of soil.

There are more than three hundred billion dollars' worth of nitrogen in the air above us. This is a rich country, but we need more people, and instead of encouraging them to come in, we foolishly keep them out.

HENRY FORD is studying a better kind of boat to carry freight and passengers. If he produces it, he will add billions to the nation's wealth. The height of mechanical folly is carrying on pounding rails and wheels freight that ought to guide, without friction or wear, along thousands of miles of canals and rivers.

ALMOST ANYTHING will cure, if you have faith, and little faith is very hard to cure. Billions of cells that make up our bodies will respond to optimistic suggestion from the brain when they won't respond to medicine.

LADY DOCTOR of Arkansas advertised, "Send me a single drop of your blood, and I will tell you what ails you."

Somebody sent a blood specimen and got this answer:

"You have cancer of the brain over the left ear, cancer and tuberculosis in each hip joint, kidney disease and some malaria." The lady is arrested. The sample of blood was taken from a young pullet that did not live to hear the dreadful diagnosis.

The lawyer for the lady doctor declares that she has treated his son with marvelous success. It's all in having confidence.

"E" OMITTED RUM CASE IS KILLED

Omission of the letter "e" making "one" read "on" in a Federal search warrant issued by United States Commissioner Gordon at Springfield resulted in the discharge by Commissioner Hayes of Fred Summer and James Fleming of the Hotel Marlboro, Nantasket, when they were arraigned of charges of illegal possession of 18 bottles of beer and one quart of whisky.

Commissioner Hayes' action was the second blow of the day at the attempts of federal prohibition agents to secure search warrants from other commissioners and then bring their prisoners into his court. Previously he had discharged Florence Pfieffer and Thomas Boyle of the Surfside Inn whose place was raided at the same time.

In discharging the defendants Commissioner Hayes hurled a broadside at the Springfield commissioner when he declared that "these commissioners who issue search warrants should learn the true interpretation of the law. Why don't they do things right. These persons who pretend to issue search warrants should issue them properly."

Commissioner Hayes ruled that the search warrant was faulty when it was found to read that the agents purchased "on bottle of beer from a man" and that they were directed to seize "certain intoxicating liquor" without actually specifying what liquor was to be seized.

MABEL GILLESPIE, LABOR LEADER, DEAD

Miss Mabel Gillespie, one of the best known labor women in the country, is dead.

She was taken suddenly ill in the Lee Syndicate Dressmaking establishment, No. 224 Boylston street, where she was employed as manager, and died before medical attendance reached her.

Death was probably due to heart trouble. Medical Examiner Brickley was notified and he ordered the body removed to the Northern Mortuary.

Miss Mabel Gillespie

Miss Gillespie was first vice-president of the Massachusetts branch of the A. F. of L. She was fifty-five years old and [illegible] giving [illegible] for Sacco and Vanzetti.

FRANCE TO WITHDRAW TROOPS

Will Make Ruhr Occupation as Nearly "Invisible" as Possible

Paris, Sept. 25. — Premier Poincare's next move in view of Germany's economic surrender will be to ask the interallied reparation commission to deal with the new situation.

As soon as the German government officially withdraws its resistance orders directions will be sent General Degoutte to make the Ruhr occupation as nearly "invisible" as possible.

Paris, Sept. 25 (I.N.S.)—France's position in continental Europe is stronger today than at any time since Napoleon set out to conquer the world.

After eight months, the Germans saw passive resistance was useless and Chancellor Stresemann has declared he cannot continue.

"Pertinax," writing in the Echo de Paris, says Germany's defeat "is greater than in 1918." He demands that the allied authorities in the Ruhr and along the Rhine sign another armistice pact with the Germans. "Pertinax" is close to official sources.

"Germany's proclamation ending passive resistance is similar to the admission of defeat in 1918," said the Petit Parisien. "They had to surrender before force just as they did before."

L'Oeuvre praised Chancellor Stresemann's courage, but said he could not hold out against French troops.

London, Pessimistic, Fears Civil War in Germany

London, Sept. 25 (I.N.S.)—A new allied conference is probable now that Germany has decided to abandon passive resistance in the Ruhr, but the British press today professed fears that civil war may break out before it can be held.

It is suggested based upon utterances in the German press that a military dictator may replace Chancellor Stresemann.

The Daily News says: "The German surrender may mean disastrous consequences for both the German government and the allies."

"It may be a satisfaction to Premier Poincare that he has ruined Germany, but he has cost France pretty penny by postponing indefinitely any hope of getting reparations," said the Mail Gazette.

In discharging the defendants Commissioner Hayes hurled a broadside at the Springfield commissioner when he declared that "these commissioners who issue search warrants should learn the true interpretation of the law. Why don't they do things right. These persons who pretend to issue search warrants should issue them properly."

Commissioner Hayes ruled that the search warrant was faulty when it was found to read that the agents purchased "on bottle of beer from a man" and that they were directed to seize "certain intoxicating liquor" without actually specifying what liquor was to be seized.

JEALOUS SUITOR SHOOTS SWEETHEART

Springfield, Sept. 25.—Dora Barbee, twenty-six years old, is reported dying at the House of Providence in Holyoke as a result of being held, according to the police, by her sweetheart, John Mendes, No. 4 Grove street, Holyoke, who found her at midnight in the company of Clifford Winters, the man of whom he was jealous.

Dora Barbee

Mendes pumped through the window and fired one shot, it was alleged. Winters plunged under a bed in one corner of the room while Miss Barbee sought refuge beneath a table. Mendes fired another shot in the darkness and this glancing off the floor of the room entered the girl's stomach, wounding her, probably fatally. Police are searching for Mendes.

BOWEN PREPARES TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

Brockton, Sept. 25.—William F. Bowen of East Bridgewater, a prominent figure in the Tynesboro murder case, will probably be discharged tomorrow. He has been under treatment there since his attempt at suicide, Sept. 16. Bowen has retained as counsel William J. Callahan, one

MRS. STOKES' STORY OF PLOT

Slain Girl Had Six Secret Loves

PLOT LAID BY STOKES, SAYS WIFE

Seeks to Ruin Her Name Because He Wants Only One Heir to His Vast Estate

This is the first of a series of articles by Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes who is fighting what she charges is a plot engineered by her husband to "assassinate" her name and character.

By HELEN ELWOOD STOKES

Chicago, Sept. 25 (Copyright, 1923, by C.N.S.)—Before me as I write are copies of letters written by the father of my children to a detective whom he hired to write my name in scarlet letters across the blackest background of immoral debauchery.

They have swept away the last shred of feeling I have for W. E. D. Stokes.

Through the four years of agony since he dared to file suit for divorce against me, knowing that before God he was accusing an innocent woman, I have undergone the deepest humiliation any human ever suffered.

I have been stricken dumb with the hatefulness of the man I once loved. But I never knew what the depths of misery meant until I read the letters that this man sent to a hired employe urging him to get affidavits at any price to say that I was an immoral woman. There is no degeneracy too low for him to link my name with—no class of people too immoral for him to point out as my associates.

LOVING PARENTS

In spite of the fact that W. E. D. Stokes knows where I spent every minute of my life until I married him and that there never was a girl more sheltered, more jealously guarded by loving parents than Helen Elwood, who had only one name and that a proud one before she unhappily took the name her innocent babies now bear.

W. E. D. Stokes knows I was never an inmate of the Everleigh Club or any other immoral institution. He knows that I never lived in Chicago in my life; that the longest period I ever spent here was four days. He knows I could not possibly have been the Helen Underwood or Norwood he tried to make me out and he knows I am a fit mother for my babies.

But W. E. D. Stokes has no conscience. He knows only one God—money—and for the sake of the dollars that he begrudges me and my little children, he would paint me with the dark lies of perjured testimony as the lowest woman who ever walked the streets.

WANTS ONLY ONE HEIR

Because these letters have shown me exactly the kind of man I married, I am going to show him to the world. In three articles, which my attorney, Charles E. Erbacher has advised me to write in order to refute these lies, I shall tell you how Mr. Stokes knows the testimony he bought here was false; what my life has been as his wife and why he resorts to these methods to get rid of me.

Mr. Stokes wants only one heir. He doesn't want his millions to be divided. And W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., his 25-year-old son, whose perjured affidavit against me his father bought with his millions, is the man he wants to bear his name and have his millions. He doesn't care about my two babies. He would rather the bread from their mouths when he tossed aside their mother and tries to rob her name.

Mr. Stokes has tried to make out that it is the money I want. It is not. I am fighting this divorce suit not because I care for the money for myself, my life is over, but because I refuse to allow my name to be besmirched and my children ashamed and to retain my dower right in the Stokes millions, so that my children will have their share of their father's money.

HER LIFE STORY

To begin my story I was born November 13, 1886, in Denver, Colo. to Emma Elwood and John Dexter

STARTS NEW PROBE OF MODEL MURDER

"DOT" KING AND FOGG

"Broadway Butterfly" found mysteriously slain in her apartment, and the Boston man held as blackmail plot suspect. New York authorities are trying to link Fogg with band of extortioners believed responsible for the beautiful model's death. (Photo of Miss King by International News Reel.)

LINK BLACKMAIL PLOT WITH MURDER

blackmail ring. The ring ordered "Dot" to "shake down" Mitchell. She refused and death came.

NEW YORK ADDRESS

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised if this fellow Le Barron was mixed up in this ring," said Assistant District Attorney Pecora.

Fogg, when arrested a few days ago and giving the name of LeBarron gave also a Broadway address. That address will be investigated by Manhattan detectives today.

Mrs. Theresa Saulnier

Fogg represented himself as a member of a New York syndicate. Mrs. Emmons told the police when she caused his arrest. There also came to light at the time of "Dot" King's passing the name of a Boston sweetheart, one Albert E. Chilnares.

Fogg at present is free on $2,000 bail while his bondsman—a woman in his case—is in difficulties. She is Mrs. Theresa Saulnier of No. 582 Tremont street. She is under arrest charged with making false statements as to the value of property she put up as security for Fogg's release.

Mrs. Saulnier is the woman questioned by Attorney John P. Feeney relative to the Paul Pappas case last June, in his plea for a new trial for Pappas, he claimed she forged two signatures. A handwriting expert testified she had forged the names of Miss Arsenault, one [illegible] Grand Jury.

"John Gleason," in the absence from a contract for a piano which had been held by Alice Arsenault, the murder victim.

She was arrested by Inspector Pierce and Special Officers James F. O'Neill and Desfosses.

WOMAN GETS BAIL.

Mrs. Saulnier obtained bail for herself from William A. Nazarro, a professional bondsman. And was freed almost immediately.

Police investigation failed to link Mrs. Saulnier with Fogg in six alleged blackmail operations. She declared she had never seen Fogg, and that she bailed him on the request of Michael Nazarro in the absence from Boston of his son, William. She said her only reward for the transaction was a taxi ride to the police station.

Police, prepared to re-arrest Fogg when the warrant was issued for Mrs. Saulnier's arrest, were informed the laws do not permit his re-arrest on the same charge until a judge calls for a change in surety at the time of his arraignment.

PROPERTY ATTACHED.

In arranging Fogg's bail, Mrs. Saulnier is alleged to have represented to the authorities that she was the sole owner of real estate worth $25,000. Fogg's bail was $5,000. She is said to have claimed there were no encumbrances on the property admitted as bail. It was learned her property is attached in a civil action.

A statement from District Attorney O'Brien says:

"We are right after bail commissioners and surcties who are making false statements and who are not reliable. We are going to keep after them until we drive these parasites out of business."

A number of these cases, it is believed, will appear before the October session of the Grand Jury.

SUITORS OF ORGANIST MARRIED

Jealousy Revealed as Probable Cause of Brutal New Jersey Killing

By Universal Service

Millville, N. J., Sept. 25.—Like a story from Balzac reads the tale of the loves and defiant spurning of convention that filled the brief fifteen years of the life of pretty Emma Dixon, who was slain on a lonely stretch of the State road near here ten days ago.

The precocious young organist of the old Nazareth Church was carrying on love intrigues with six men of the community, most of them married, it appeared from piecing together of the story of the neighbors and of her own father.

NEVER HOME MUCH.

"She was always gallivanting around with the boys. She never stayed home much," was all he would say.

But her bed-ridden grandfather cried when they told him of Emma's brutal slaying by an unknown hand and all he would say was:

"Emmy was a good girl. They never understood her around here."

The authorities have established the fact that on the day before Emma disappeared she mailed six post cards to six different men in Millville and the neighboring communities. The names of four of these man are known. Three of them are married and the other is engaged to a respectable, wealthy girl of a neighboring town.

"UNPOPULAR" IN SCHOOL.

At high school in Millville, where the girl was a sophomore, and where the hardest lessons were easy for her, Emma was known as "unpopular." She scorned the callow high school youth and his calf love. She didn't want those "kids" around her, she said.

The authorities have definitely abandoned the theory that a chance passerby killed the girl after assaulting her. They believe that the hand that wielded the heavy board found near her crushed and broken body was envious only to be sure the girl was dead, that a secret should be buried with her bruised corpse.

WATCH SIX MEN.

Consequently they are bending every effort to check up the movements of six men who got the love cards from this fair young juggler of man's passions. They believe that either jealousy or fear of exposure will be found to be the motive behind the murder.

On the day of her disappearance Emma is known to have kept two "dates" with men. She left school that afternoon and entered a Dodge car a block away. With the men in the car she took a spin in the country and he dropped her late near the station so she could catch a train to Port Elizabeth.

HUB DIVA ON TOUR, HUSBAND REWEDS

MISS MOLL AMAZED TO FIND MARRIAGE ANNULLED

Chicago, Sept. 25.—How Amy Doreitl Moll, former prima donna with the Boston Opera Company, returned to Chicago from a tour in Canada to learn that her marriage had been annulled and that her husband was married to another woman was revealed today by her suit for the support of her child.

For six years, the diva has kept secret the astounding situation in which she found herself after leaving home in the belief that her marital happiness was secure.

Miss Moll petitioned the court for $100 a month from her former husband, Charles J. French, wealthy Chicago manufacturer, for the support of her nine-year-old daughter Velma. She also asks $5,000 from French "to remedy his negligence in not supporting the child for six years."

French, a son of Madam Florence French, owner and editor of the Musical Leader, the records for 1917 show, obtained an annulment on the ground that his marriage to Miss Moll took place within two months after she had been divorced from Lloyd Nark in 1911.

Illinois law, at the time of the annulment, forbade the remarriage of divorced persons within one year of the granting of the decree. The law has since been repealed. Action on Miss Moll's petition has been deferred, pending the appearance in court of French and his counsel.

Death Takes Golfer at 65, "Danger" Mark at 50

London, Sept. 25. — The death of A. R. Smith, secretary of Dover College, while playing golf, has revived the discussion of the age at which golfers should retire.

Mr. Smith was 65 and 13th English golfer past middle life to die on the links this year. Some British physicians contend 50 is the danger mark at which devotees of the game should put by their clubs.

Those who hold this view say the arteries are rigid at that age and club swinging is likely to be fatal.

PROPOSED TRAFFIC SOLUTION

Idea submitted by Boston American reader to relieve congestion on Tremont and Boylston streets.

SHOOTING OF BOY IS KEPT SECRET

Malcolm W. Jones, 16-year-old Winchester High School student, is dying in the Symmes Memorial Hospital, Arlington, from a bullet wound from a .22 caliber revolver.

Young Jones was found bleeding in his bed Sunday morning by his mother, Mrs. Frank W. Jones, in the family residence at No. 11 Crescent road, Winchester.

The shooting was kept secret for two days. Dr. Herbert C. Maynard of Winchester, who was called by Jones' parents, the Winchester police say, has never reported the affair.

Dr. Maynard had young Jones removed to the Symmes Memorial Hospital despite the fact that the boy was bleeding profusely and the Winchester Hospital was close by. He was unconscious when he arrived at the hospital and has remained so ever since.

Parents of the boy refused to comment on the case.

Neighbors declare that young Jones made the statement on different occasions that he would do away with his life some day. They also say that they have heard pistol shots in the vicinity of the Jones home many times. Jones always was interested in firearms, according to friends.

OFFERS PLANS TO SOLVE HUB TRAFFIC JAM

A reader with the interest of Boston at heart today sent the Boston American the following suggestion as a partial solution of Boston's downtown traffic congestion:

"Why not," he writes, "cut a road through Boston Common diagonally from, say Beacon street, to a point on Tremont street between West and Park streets. This road to be used by automobile traffic only. It could be sunk and bridged on the present level for pedestrians passing through the historic green.

"It is beautiful," adds the writer, "to want to preserve the Common as it stands, "but the day is approaching when sentiment must give way to necessity. I do not think a plan as helpful as this could be termed a desecration of that property."

The writer also suggests that the Boston Elevated move its stations along the Common to points toward Washington street, leaving Tremont and Boylston streets free of the rush of car riders morning, noon and night. Eliminate this rush and automobile traffic could be kept moving in almost a steady flow, he says. The writer also suggests levelling Washington street in the business district and making it an arcade for the shopping public on foot.

The American welcomes suggestions from readers as to a solution of a problem which threatens to shortly overwhelm the city.

MRS. STOKES CHARGES PLOT TO RUIN HER

Elwood, who had gone there because of my father's ill health.

When my father died a year later mother brought me and my older sister, eBatrice, back to Denver. Two years later she married Arthur Scott Miller whose name and standing in Denver is the very highest. He was a widower with two children, Roland and Marie (Roland was one of the co-respondents named by Mr. Stokes). My mother had two children, Victor and Marcella Miller and we all grew up together.

I had private tutors until I was old enough to go to Miss Wolcott's School for Girls in Denver and after finishing there was sent to National Park Seminary, one of the most exclusive schools in the country.

I was graduated from there in 1904. With my maiden aunt, Miss Georgia Miller and my older sister, Beatrice, I went to Europe for six months. When we returned to Denver in 1905 I made my debut into society at a party given at my mother's home, 851 Clarkson street. After that my life was a happy whirl.

THE 'IMMORAL' PICTURE

Each year mother and Beatrice and Victor (my half brothers and Marcella (who is a senior this year at Smith College) and I went on a trip. In 1908 we went to San Francisco where, I remember, we met Edgar Wallace (the man in whose apartment Mr. Stokes said I was seen and served meals to in 1915.) Senator Pitkin of Nevada introduced him one evening at dinner. Some days later with mother and my brothers and sisters, we went to the beach and had our pictures taken.

One of those pictures has been peddled all over the underworld of Chicago as an immoral picture of myself and some notorious man. It was actually a perfectly innocent snapshot of Mr. Wallace and I sniffling in the sand and snapped by my own mother.

Two years later, I met him while with mother at the Waldorf Astoria in New York. I never saw him again until the divorce trial in 1921 when my husband made such terrible charges against me, naming Mr. Wallace and citing revolvers in his apartment in New York.

NEVER ALONE AN HOUR

The year of 1909, during which, according to these letters from Mr. Stokes to the effete Raffi Gavida' which he bought from inmates of disorderly houses here, I was an inmate of the Everleigh Club and a notorious woman here, I spent in New York studying music with Ward Stevens and French with the Berlitz School of Languages. My chaperon was Miss Clatina Coleman.

I was never alone for an hour. Miss Coleman went with me every place.

The next February I went to Palm Beach with mother, Victor and Marcella; later to New Orleans, where I was the guest of honor at two of the biggest social events of the year by classmates of mine at National Park Seminary and later to Havana.

We arrived in Denver early in April of 1910 and after a few weeks at home I took the fatal trip to New York that resulted in my secret marriage to Mr. Stokes and the avalanche of grief that now threatens to crush me.

That trip was the first I had ever taken without the chaperonage of my mother or a very close relative.

Tomorrow I shall tell of Mr. Stokes' persistent courtship of the manner of my marriage to him; of my disillusionment. He has tried to bring me to the gutter.

WOMAN TO HEAD BRITISH LABOR

London, Sept. 25—The Trade-Union movement in England may have a woman for president during the coming year. Miss Margaret G. Bondfield, the well-known leader among women workers, is regarded as the likely choice from among the three candidates for the chairmanship of the General Council of the Trades Union Congress which takes place tomorrow. If chosen, Miss Bondfield will be the first woman president.

AMNESIA VICTIM'S RELATIVES HUNTED

Worcester, Sept. 25.—A woman, about sixty-five, is suffering from amnesia in the Worcester State Hospital, to which she was brought from Boston last month, and the hospital officials are trying to find her family. The woman is 5 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 157 pounds and has gray hair and blue eyes. She can give no information about her family or her home.

$3,000,000 TO BUY CLOTHES FOR JAPS

Washington, Sept. 25.—The purchasing officer of the American Red Cross was authorized by the executive committee to place orders immediately for $3,000,000 worth of clothing and other necessary commodities for the relief of Japanese earthquake victims. This action followed receipt of an official request from Japanese authorities.

CITY HALL SWAMPED BY ENTRIES

Parents Hasten to Send in Applications of Their Offspring for Examination

City and State health departments are mobilizing psychologists, doctors and nurses to meet the emergency which arose when letter carriers swamped the office of the Boston Health Show in City Hall Annex with 1,600 additional enrollments and brought the total number of Boston American mothers who have entered babies in the Better Babies of Boston Conference up to 2,500.

This total is more than twice the number that arrangements had been made for and at the rate the Boston American coupons are coming in it is believed that 10,000 babies will be offered for the thorough medical examination of the conference and the twenty-three prizes which will be awarded at the Health Show to the babies which score the largest number of points toward physical perfection.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Health Show will be held at City Hall tomorrow. That committee consists of Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, city health commissioner; Dr. Eugene R. Kelley, State health commissioner; Miss Mary Beard, director of the Community Health Association; Dr. Lila Owen Burbank, vice-chairman of the health exhibit committee, and Henry Copley Greene, executive secretary of the health service department of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the Red Cross.

Dr. Mahoney spoke with the voice of the entire committee when he declared:

"In my opinion from 30 to 35 per cent of the babies entered at the Health Show will be found to have physical defects which can be remedied before the children reach school age. The American is offering the infant welfare organizations a tremendous clientele."

Dr. C. St. Clair Drake, educational director of the Boston Health Show, said that the coming health conference was the only practical way to bring children of pre-school age under competent medical inspection, der competent medical inspection.

GIRL WHO SAWED WAY OUT OF JAIL CAUGHT

Springfield, Sept. 25.—Gertrude Hughes, seventeen years old, of Providence, R. I., was arrested on a vagrancy charge.

When arraigned in police headquarters, Gertrude said that she and two girl companions escaped from the Women's Reformatory at Cranston, R. I., about two weeks ago by sawing away window bars and letting themselves from the building by means of ropes made of bedding.

From Cranston, she said, she had made her way to Worcester, where she left her two companions and came to Springfield a few days later.

She was arrested at the Adams House, No. 210 Main street, by Officer Thomas St. Ledger of the vice squad. John Makris, the alleged proprietor of the hotel, was arrested on a vice charge.

According to Gertrude, she arrived in Springfield in the regulation prison garb worn at the Cranston institution. Within two days after her arrival, she said, she was able to dress herself in stylish clothes and bedeck herself with expensive finery.

Clerks at the various Springfield department stores where Gertrud had made her purchases were abl to identify both the girl and th clothing she wore.

WOMEN'S PARTY STARTS EQUAL RIGHTS FIGHT

Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 25.—With the women's party convention concluded and the Equal Rights pageant staged, the next step in the activities of the organization's leaders will be to procure active support and cooperation of the Congressional delegations of Western States for the adoption by Congress of the Lucretia Mott amendment to the Constitution.

Mrs. O. P. Belmont.

To a committee of women members of the Colorado branch of the Women's Party will be assigned the task of calling upon United States Senators Phips and Adams and other women will urge the Congressmen from the various districts to support and vote for the amendment when it is introduced by Senator Curtis of Kansas.

As in times past when they were working for the Susan B. Anthony, or Nineteenth Amendment to the Constitution, members of the Women's Party committees will refuse to accept "no" from the representatives in Congress.

The pageant created by the artistic imagination of Miss Hazel MacKaye of New York, was a spectacle of beauty, dignity and graceful action that enthralled an audience of thousands.

And as the full beauty of the whole ensemble broke, there arose a woman who is pouring out her wealth and giving her time to the furtherance of the cause, Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont. When cheering subsided she made the appeal for support in the campaign that is dawning, paying tributs to the great women who have "lit and held the torch of freedom."

CAPITAL BELLE JILTS MARINE FOR RICH MAN

Washington, Sept. 25.—A romantic elopement, with an international tinge, gave Washington society a distinct thrill when the details came to light today. Zest was added to the romance by the fact that a jilted fiance figures in it.

The principals were Miss Catherine Radcliffe, daughter of Daniel Radcliffe of Cardiff, Wales, and George Wise, heir to the millions of a dairyman here. They eloped to Baltimore, Friday night, following the breaking of Miss Radcliffe's engagement to Lieutenant Julian M. Brown, aide to Brigadier General Smedley A. Butler of the U. S. Marines.

The bride's father was informed by cable of the marriage and announced his intention of sailing for this country immediately. In the meantime Wise is staying at the home of his father, while the young bride is visiting friends at Warrenton, Va.

Miss Radcliffe for two reasons has been a prominent member of Washington's most exclusive society circle. She was sponsored last year by Rear Admiral and Mrs. J. K. Robinson, and it was shortly after her debut that her engagement to Lieut. Brown was announced. This year she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Selden, Jr., who in turn have been guests at her Cardiff home.

Although now out of the service, Wise has a enviable war record. He enlisted in the early days of the war, and was badly wounded, remaining a prisoner four months. He returned to America in 1919 and was discharged following his dismissal from Walter Reed Hospital here.

Dispute as to Best Jig Dancer Ends in Stabbing

Patrick Slavin, of No. 14 Minot street, Lynn, is dying at the Lynn City Hospital from deep knife wounds in the abdomen inflicted, the police say, by Patrick Tahaney, of No. 856 Western avenue, Lynn.

According to witnesses Slavin and Tahaney disputed as to which was the best Irish jig dancer in the city. After bitter words had passed, they say, Tahaney suddenly drew out a jack knife and stabbed Slavin.

PROMOTER BELLINI HELD AS THIEF ON JILTED WOMAN'S CHARGE

DIVORCEE ROUSED BY RIVAL

Dashing Ex-Officer Caused a Stir in Hub Over Supposedly Stolen Paintings

To return to New York from Europe to find the man she expected to marry, married and in possession of her effects and in the New York apartment for which she had paid the rent, is the experience alleged by Mrs. Katherine Benrimo, wife of J. Harry Benrimo, actor and author of "The Yellow Jacket," when she appeared in the Yorkville court against Umberto Bellini, a former captain in the Italian army.

She charged the captain with grand larceny, and Magistrate Sweetser held him in $500 for examination today. He denied the charge.

MARRIED CHICAGO GIRL

Mrs. Benrimo said that she returned from abroad to find that within a few weeks after she had taken her departure Bellini had, on July 30, married Evelyn Patterson, a sister of Livingston Patchanks of Chicago. The two are now living at the Fifty-sixth street apartment.

Capt. Umberto Bellini.

Captain Bellini testified that he had in fact bought the apartment and its effects for $100 in cash and 2,000 shares in stock in an unlisted company.

Bellini created a stir in Boston last Winter when he reported to the police that paintings valued at $500,000 had been stolen by a fellow Italian from his apartment in Brimmer street. Developments in Bellini's affairs were rapid from that time on.

SUSPECTED IN HUB

The value of the paintings was disputed. Bellini himself came under the suspicion of the police, a love affair with Ruth Von Schelley, daughter of Baron Von Schelley, German consul in Boston, was exposed, and State investigators became interested in the Insuranz Tide Water Power Company, of which Bellini was said to be the prime mover.

Art circles were much stirred over the reported theft of the valuable paintings. Their coinc assertions that the paintings were not genuine. Bellini entered counter claims and offered a $100,000 reward for proof that his statements regarding the canvases were false. The paintings were recovered from a Boylston street store, where they had been offered for sale for $600. The supposed thief received a part of $100.

The canvases were supposed to include one by Da Vinci. During the subsequent procedures it was charged by Bellini's landlord that he had not paid his rent for two months.

DUPED MISS SCHOLLEY

In Boston he said that he had been a captain in the Italian infantry during the World War. His decorations included the Cross of Merit for gallantry in battle and knighthood for services as an engineer.

The problem of the genuineness of the paintings was never settled here.

When the exposure of his romance with Miss Von Scholley came out, Bellini admitted that he had a wife and four children in Italy. He stated that he had divorced his wife at Fiume.

Bellini left Boston and the matter of the stolen paintings was dropped by the police. As far as Boston was concerned, the affair ended with almost as much mystery as that with which it began.

Dr. Ladd and Wife Leaders in North Shore Set, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

BOTH Dr. Maynard Ladd and his wife, Anna Coleman Ladd, of the Beverly Farms colony, are entitled to a prominent place in our "Who's News Along the North Shore."

Dr. Ladd is one of Boston's noted physicians, while his wife has achieved no small fame as a sculptress.

It was during the war that husband and wife were given ample opportunity to prove their bravery and skill. Dr. Ladd sailed for France as a major of the Red Cross unit and was put in charge of the American Red Cross hospital at Toul. Also attached to the Red Cross hospital in France was Mrs. Ladd, and to her was given the difficult task of restoring the likeness of men horribly mutilated in the war.

This was done chiefly by means of a mask, which was made this way: First, Mrs. Ladd obtained the photograph of the disfigured soldier as he looked before the war to guide her in building a form of the new face which was to be as closely as possible a reproduction of the old one. This plaster cast was then put into a solution of copperas, through which an electric current was sent, depositing a film of pure copper. This was the new mask, which Mrs. Ladd made life-like and natural with paint and brush and the skilful use of a real mustache, goatee or full beard, as the case required.

Not only wonderful and interesting work, but the gratitude of the poor men must have been very inspiring. And to all accounts the Boston sculptress found it so. Mrs. Ladd, by the way, originally hails from Philadelphia.

Aside from this work brought about through the war, Mrs. Ladd has made some of the most beautiful statues adorning the gardens of various North Shore estates. She has exhibited bronzes at the National Sculpture Society, the Pennsylvania Academy, the Corcoran Art Gallery in Washington, the Chicago Art Institute and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

One of the most widely discussed of her works is Mrs. Ladd's polychrome portrait of Mrs. T. Handasyd Cabot. Painted after the fashion of Renaissance terra cotta busts, the flesh a warm, full red, the textiles green and gold, it follows a style that is still enough of a novelty in modern exhibitions to arouse animated comment.

Mrs. Ladd's studies have been pursued in Paris and Rome, in which cities she lived for a number of years. It was in 1905 that she married the Boston physician, the ceremony taking place in Salisbury Cathedral, England. Dr. and Mrs. Ladd and their two children—Gabriella and Vernon Ladd—spend their Summers at "Arden," as their new place at the Farms is called. Their Winter home is at No. 270 Clarendon street.

COLLEGE GIRLS HEAR EDDIE DOWLING

Eddie Dowling has invaded Simmons College and talked to the Dramatic Association on the value of the theatre and its influence on the younger play-goers. Mr. Dowling, who is both a playwright and player and whose "Sally, Irene and Mary" at the Wilbur is one of the outstanding hits of the season, was invited to tell the young women of Simmons a few inside points on the elements of genuine dramatic achievement.

Eddie Dowling

Mr. Dowling addressed the Dramatic Association on the value of the clean, wholesome drama as contrasted with plays that make their appeal on subjects that are unwholesome and undesirable. "The theatre," said Mr. Dowling, "is purely a source of entertainment and when attractions are presented in which the appeal is made to the baser instincts they must be accepted by the playgoing public on their face value. Good plays, or rather good, clean entertainments will survive on their own strength."

According to Mr. Dowling, any dramatic entertainment that is not produced and based on good morals must, in the long run, fail because the public, which supports the theatre, is fundamentally sound in its decisions. Clean plays, he told the young women, often have what appears like popularity and success, but plays like "Lightnin'," the Cohan shows and his own production have the greatest public appeal because everybody knows they are clean and can be accepted at their advertised value.

"Plays are like any other commodity," Mr. Dowling told his hearers. "If they are based on cleanliness and have dramatic value, they will live."

930 FRESHMEN SET NEW MARK AT HARVARD

Harvard opens with the greatest freshman class in its 288 years of history.

Statistics at the close of the first day of registration show that 930 freshmen enrolled in the college. Last year's freshman registration was 837.

The total enrollment reached a new mark of 2858 as compared with 2710 last year. The registration by classes was: Freshmen, 930; Sophmores, 712; Juniors, 693; Seniors, 463. There were 60 out-of-course students. It is believed that late registrations will reach the 2900 mark.

The Medical School, which last year threatened to be swamped, has already reached its quota of 500 students in each of the four classes.

The Graduate School for Business Administration had a total registration of 472, as compared with last year's final figures of 468.

The Law School enrolled 992 students as compared with 992 last year, the first year class, has 475 in comparison with 412 last year.

In the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, there are 567 pupils, as against 648 last year. There were 165 who registered for the Dental School, compared with 219 last year.

Tonight, there will be a reception to new students at the Harvard Union. Prof. R. C. Moore will preside. The speakers include President Lowell, Prof. J. L. Lowes, and Asst. Dean H. E. Deacon.

TWO LYNN CHILDREN HURT IN UNUSUAL ACCIDENTS

Two Lynn children were victims of unusual accidents in that city. Four-year-old Annie Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Swain, of No. 24 Rockaway street.

Daniel Mangeranis, ten years old, son of George Mangeranis, of Sargents court, was badly crushed about the head, after being dragged thirty-five feet along Boston street, when he became entangled in a rope dangling from an automobile owned by Benjamin Campbell, of No. 137 Washington street, Lynn.

GAMING HOUSE WIDE OPEN FOR YEAR BEFORE HOLDUP, IS CHARGE

POLICEMAN REPORTED BEATEN

Lost a Watch and Received a Black Eye When Bandits Raided Randolph Place

Randolph, Sept. 25.—Close upon the heels of the sensational bandit raid upon the gambling house in North street at which two men were shot and some $5,000 stolen, comes the indignant declaration of citizens that not only has this gambling house been known to the police for many months but that at least one policeman actually was present when the hold-up took place.

The policeman present, it is reported is a member of the Braintree police department. He is said to have lost a watch to the bandits and to have received a black eye to boot. The police answer is a flat denial.

"I didn't know a thing about the place until I received a telephone call from someone who refused to give his name that there was a lot of shooting going on down there," said Chief Hanley.

CHIEF EXPLAINS

"I was sure there was a riot of some sort. The gambling house is in the center of the Italian quarter, and I supposed it was trouble of some sort among the Italians."

Asked if it were true the gambling establishment had been in operation for several months, Chief Hanley replied:

"No, I should say the game was not been going on for more than five or six weeks. That is, of course, as near as I could learn from the men I questioned," Chief Hanley hurriedly added.

No More Wrinkles!

New Discovery Smooths Them Away—Like Magic

SCIENCE has perfected a remarkable new treatment—which is guaranteed to remove every tired line and wrinkle, no matter how deep seated it may be!

Nothing like this new treatment has ever been known before. You just press a small quantity of a delightfully fragrant cream into the wrinkle, let it remain for a short while, then remove it. As if by magic each line and wrinkle is gently lifted away, revealing a charming new youthful complexion. Even after the first few days, the face appears years younger looking.

This new discovery is called Domino Wrinkle Cream. Women everywhere say it is the greatest beauty discovery in years. For it proves that there is no longer any excuse for beauty-spoiling wrinkles. Why let unsightly lines and wrinkles rob you of your attractiveness when they can now be so easily banished?

Get it at your favorite store today. If they haven't it in stock, send one dollar ($1.00) plus ten cents (10c) postage to Domino House, 249 South 8th street, Phila., Pa.

DOMINO WRINKLE CREAM

BARNUM WAS RIGHT

20,000 MARKS FOR 10 CENTS

This enterprising pedler found many easy marks among Boston folk, and did a rushing street business in almost worthless German currency.

Braintree, and Lester A. McCusker, also of Braintree, were shot by the bandits. Devine is in a critical condition at the Quincy City Hospital. McCusker, less dangerously injured, is at the home of his father, Andrew McCusker, head of the McCusker Dye Works in Braintree.

DEVINE MAY DIE.

John Shay, in charge of the police of South Braintree, declared he did not know of the existence of the North street gambling house until informed by Chief Hanley over the telephone.

"That district," he said, "is near the line separating my territory and Chief Hanley's. When I'm in that vicinity, I cover both sides of the line, and when he's there, he does the same for me. We both have one-man departments."

EXAGGERATED, CHIEF SAYS.

Chief Hanley declared reports of the extent of the gambling were greatly exaggerated. He said there were probably not more than fifty gamblers present when the holdup took place, and that not more than half of the original amount reported was taken by the highwaymen. He estimated the loot at between $4,000 and $5,000.

Local newspapers, in their account of the robbery and the shooting, reported friction between the Randolph police and the Brockton authorities following the summoning of aid from Brockton by Chief Hanley, and the subsequent abrupt dismissal of the three Brockton patrolmen who were sent with riot guns to assist Chief Hanley.

Chief Hanley declared there was no friction so far as he was able to learn.

"When I was told there was a riot," he said, "I thought it was a trifle too much for one man. I got in touch with one of our Selectmen, and then telephoned to City Marshal Daniel Guerin of Brockton.

"There was plenty of evidence of a fight, but the two men there refused to talk. Then I started out to question the wounded men. I didn't know how seriously they were hurt. I had been told they were dying, and I felt I should get their statements."

Miss Dodge was taken to the Relief Station, suffering from a fractured skull. Her name was placed on the danger list.

STREET VENDER CLEANS UP ON GERMAN MARKS

There are marks and marks and Boston has its share of both, a bright member of the clan to which O. Henry's Gentle Grafter belonged demonstrated in down town streets.

Scores of persons whose mathematics seem to have been rusty were buying marks from a nonchalant seller at ten cents for ten thousand of the German variety.

In New York city today, German marks were purchasable at .000,000 for seven-tenths of a cent, or 140,000,000 for seventy cents.

If Boston absorbed that number of marks, the nonchalant mathematician would receive $10 for a stock in trade which cost him just 70 cents.

MAN ARRESTED IN WEYMOUTH RUM RAID

Weymouth, Sept. 25.—Sergeant Edward F. Butler of the Weymouth police liquor squad, assisted by five other members, swooped down on the home of William Melanson, at No. 1 Rambler way, where, it is alleged, they secured an illegal sale of liquor, and seized four cases of beer, two bottles of moonshine, two empty cases and a fifteen gallon still.

Melanson was locked up on the charge of making an illegal sale and keeping and exposing liquor. He is forty years old, married, and the father of six children.

200 FORCED TO FLEE $100,000 WOBURN FIRE

Several firemen were overcome and more than 200 persons were forced to flee their homes, in a $100,000 fire in the factory and business blocks at Main and Union streets, Woburn.

Three buildings were destroyed and a fourth was afire before firemen gained the upper hand. Low water pressure due to the drouth increased the fire hazard and handicapped the firemen.

GAS EXPLOSION.

A gas explosion in the Woburn Candy Kitchen is said to have caused the fire. The explosion was heard by Patrolman John J. Kerwin, who gave the alarm.

Chief Frank E. Tracy immediately sounded a general alarm and called for help from Winchester and Stoneham.

Within a short time the fire had destroyed the three-story frame building at Main and Union streets, owned by Samuel Gorin, and had spread to the Hub Dry Goods Company store, and the Callahan Tog Shop, next door, and burning through the other wall, fire to the storage rooms of the Tribble Cordage Company on the upper floors, Smith's Art Shop, a shoe shine parlor, Alexander's Pool Room, and the rooms of the John Reddy upholstering firm were quickly wiped out.

FOUR RESCUED.

Firemen rescued Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Seminatore and their two children, and Mrs. Margaret Mc. Garth, who occupied apartments in the burning buildings.

Several firemen were overcome by smoke during the fire. A policeman of the Woburn department was badly cut by falling glass.

PAYROLL HOLDUP TRIAL CONTINUED

Two Cambridge girls, Gertrude Hooley and Irene Cullinan, who witnessed the holdup two months ago of the paymaster of the American Optical Company in Cambridge, appeared in the East Cambridge Court at the trial of Thomas "Peanuts" Gallagan, who is charged with the robbery.

The case was continued until October by Judge McLeod, and the girls did not identify Gallagan as charged by the police with being the leader of a gang guilty of many daring payroll robberies.

MAGAZINE STREET HEARING TONIGHT

More than 500 citizens of Cambridge are expected to attend the public hearing tonight relative to making Magazine street a one-way thoroughfare. Arthur H. Wilson will present a petition 100 feet long.

Many prominent people who are in favor of the plan will be present to voice their approval.

The hearing will be called at 7:30 sharp in the Cambridge City Hall.

ARRESTED FOR "NO FUNDS" CHECK

Four hours after a Portland, Me., automobile dealer had cashed a check returned marked "no funds," tendered by the purchaser of a machine, Boston detectives had found the car and arrested its driver. He was Charles Rosenthal of Chicago. The check was for $1,500. Police say he bought the car and drove to Boston. He was taken back to Portland today.

Clinton Ministers Band to War on Sunday Movies

Clinton, Sept. 25.—The ministers of this place, led by the Rev. Robert R. Carmichael of the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, are determined Sunday movies must stop.

The ministers maintain all the Sunday evening shows in town are illegal and will hold mass meetings next Sunday evening to present their case.

Rev. M. D. Kneeland, secretary of "The Lord's Day League" will be present at this meeting.

URGE STORING UP BIG SUPPLY OF SOFT COAL

Washington, Sept. 25 (I.N.S.)—"Systematic storage of bituminous coal on a large scale by consumers during the season of low consumption is the public's largest opportunity and responsibility in solving the coal problem," the United States coal commission today informed President Coolidge in a supplementary report.

"Storage of coal by consumers is the all-important balance wheel between fluctuating consumption and variable production," the commission said.

"It is the consumers' insurance against temporary failures of transportation, and it is the only protection yet devised for the consumer against protracted general stoppage of coal mining or of railroad deliveries."

The commission pointed out that in anticipation of the general strike of soft coal miners on April 1, 1922, the country bought and stored more than 60,000,000 tons of bituminous coal.

"The cost of storage is an indefinite figure, according to the report. Considering interest and maintenance of extra mechanical equipment, interest cost including freight and deterioration and shrinkage, the costs range from 50 cents to 75 cents for large storages of 50,000 tons or more to $1 to $1.50 per ton for small storages up to 1,000 tons.

"Spread over the total tonnage used in a year and figured as cost per ton for all coal used, the figure is much less," the report said.

LLOYD GEORGE TO SPEAK IN BOSTON

Washington, Sept. 25.—Sir Alfred Cope, political secretary to David Lloyd George, former prime minister of England, has arrived in Washington to make preliminary arrangements for the forthcoming visit of Mr. Lloyd George to the United States.

Lloyd George will probably go to Boston, then speak in New York, November 2, and leaves New York November 3 for London on the White Star liner Majestic.

SUIT OF LOTTA CRABTREE IS SETTLED

The $10,000 suit brought in 1916 by Lotta Crabtree against the estates of the late William Harris and the late Charles Frohman has been settled out of court by an agreed judgment for the plaintiff in the sum of $7,000 and costs of $20.62.

Lotta Crabtree.

The suit was to recover under a lease of the Park Theatre, running from August 16, 1913, to August 15, 1914.

The plaintiff sought to recover rent for the month of July 15 to August 15, 1914, amounting to $3,916, plus interest, a total of $3,238, and also to recover excess taxes for several years over the tax of May 1, 1907, amounting to $47.36.

The agreement for settlement was signed and filed by William A. Meek, counsel for the plaintiff, and J. A. Brackett for the defendants. Harris was living when the suit was brought, but died in 1921.

SHIPS ENOUGH FOR BIG CANADIAN CROPS

Ottawa, Sept. 25.—Thomas A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, stated that available Canadian and American bottoms were definitely in sight to take care of all Canada's prospective grain shipment except some 23,000,000 to 40,000,000 bushels. The Minister is endeavoring to work out a solution to take care of this balance. In addition to the Canadian ships, the Minister said that ten to twenty American vessels will be available throughout the remainder of this season to take part in grain shipments from the head of the lakes.

MARINE IS KILLED IN BOXING BOUT

Newport, R. I., Sept. 25.—Sergeant John T. Holly, one of Newport's best known marines, was instantly killed by a blow to the heart which he received during a friendly boxing bout with another marine at the Naval Torpedo Station. Holly is a native of Tunnerville, Georgia, and has been attached to the local station since before the great war. The incident is being investigated by a board of naval and marine officers.

Flogging Witness

London.—The Times says the British Museum has acquired a hitherto unknown Italian map dated 1506. It is said to be the first printed map in which the discoveries of Columbus are given, including America.

MACON DOCTOR ON TRIAL AS KLAN FLOGGER

Macon, Ga., Sept. 25.—Dr. C. A. Yarbrough, Macon dentist, who, the State alleges, was the ringleader in a series of floggings here, was again placed on trial in City Court here charged with rioting in connection with the flogging of W. O. Barnett, a harness manufacturer.

The cases of eight other men, charged with being implicated in various floggings, were continued. Yarbrough was acquitted last week on a charge of whipping R. F. Mills.

Wallace Miller, formerly assistant United States district attorney, and a noted criminal lawyer, appeared in the case to assist Solicitor Roy W. Moore and P. H. Lamb.

Mrs. Lynwood Bright of Atlanta, whose divorced husband, Lynwood Bright, was flogged, but who failed to appear for the trial of Dr. Yarbrough on the charges of flogging H. F. Mills, was present when the roll of State witnesses was called. The State has charged that Bright was whipped after Mrs. Bright visited the office of Dr. Yarbrough. The defense contends that she visited the dentist to thank him for signing a bond.

Barnett charges in his accusation that Dr. Yarbrough and a number of other masked men dogged him on Feb. 27 last.

SCION OF RICH FRENCH FAMILY WORKS IN HARVARD LAUNDRY

WAR HERO POSSESSES LL. D.

Intends to Earn Own Way Through Freshman Class of Law School

Pierre Termut de Roche, A. B., LL. D., of Paris, scion of a wealthy and aristocratic French family, a captain of cavalry during the war, wounded seven times by bayonets and shrapnel, decorated with the French Croix de Guerre, is working his way through Harvard Law School in the students' laundry.

Pierre came to America a year ago with a small fortune in his pockets. He spent the fortune "seeing the boys," and familiarizing himself with America and American customs. He is now working for his tuition and his keep.

He received his bachelor's degree at the University of Paris, and then from the University of Leipsic he received the degree of Doctor of Laws, the highest mark of scholastic achievement any university can confer. While at Leipsic, he wrote a 200 page book on international law. The book is in German.

HAIR GRAY AT 33.

Although he is thirty-one years, his hair is gray, having turned gray in thirty-six hours, when as a captain of cavalry he led his company in a mass attack upon the Germans at Mons. Wounded seven times by bayonet and shrapnel, he rushed forward, the horses speeding shoulder to shoulder, over the German lines. He got a Croix de Guerre for it.

After a year in the hospital, following the war, he sailed for the United States with a fortune, which he spent last year going around with the boys, learning to talk English. Then came the necessity of a job. He went to work in a lunchroom near the college, where he was "discovered."

ADMITTED WITHOUT EXAM.

Introduced to Dean Roscoe Pound, who holds a doctor of laws degree, Pierre made such an impression that he was admitted to the Harvard Law School without examination. The dean prophesies a great future for his new student, who with his degree under his arm is going to work his way in the students' laundry, which is run by students for students, to pay his expenses.

The laundry was started by "Charlie" Brickley and "Bill" Bingham so that needy students might have an opportunity to work their way through college.

FOREIGN WAR VETS' CHIEF TO VISIT HUB

Announcement was made today that the first official visit, since his installation as commander-in-chief, will be made by Brigadier-General Lloyd M. Brett to the Department of Massachusetts, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., next Saturday.

The Veterans of Foreign War Posts in Massachusetts are planning an enthusiastic welcome for General Brett, when he arrives. It is anticipated that Mayor Curley will arrange a luncheon for General Brett on Saturday and the Veterans of Foreign Wars have made arrangements with the Boston City Men Club for a dinner to be held on Saturday night in the general's honor.

Former Vice-Commander of the Department, Eugene P. Carver, Jr., has been appointed Chairman of the Entertainment Committee.

General Brett was born in Dead River, Maine, in 1856, resided in Malden and is a graduate of Boston Latin School. He was appointed to West Point from Malden and was graduated in 1879.

Her Own Lawyer

MARIE HORTON AND EX-MATE.

French war bride, now a Boylston street shop model, pleaded her divorce suit against Harold Horton of Somerville without a lawyer and won it.

'SHEIK' OF A. E. F. DIVORCED BY FRENCH GIRL

Marie Garcottier Horton, French war bride of former Lieutenant Harold Horton of No. 17 Everett street, Somerville, acted as her own attorney in Middlesex Probate Court and won a divorce.

"My husband was the best sheik that came over with the American forces," said Marie with a pronounced French accent. "He arrived in France when I was about to marry a very nice little French captain, to whom I had been engaged a year. He talked to me of this great America in glowing terms. I forgot my love for my little captain. Three months later we eloped and were married in La Mans, France."

Marie testified that her husband deserted her three months after they came to America. She said that he beat her on several occasions and had put her out of the house.

"One night he injured me so badly that I had to go to a hospital and stay there for three weeks," she said.

"Not once did he come to see me. He even refused to pay for the hospital bills.

"When I came out of the hospital I was forced to go to work. I soon was able to get a good position as a model in a high class millinery store on Boylston street, and have been there ever since."

PRINCE TAKES SWIM WITH CALGARY GIRLS

Banff, Alberta, Sept. 25.—On his own admission Lord Renfrew had "the time of his life" during his week-end at Banff. He has already played ninety holes of golf, attended church services, danced through a full jazz program and taken a midnight splash in the Banff Springs Hotel hot sulphur pool. The news has became known that the prince, accompanied by two Calgary girls and his secretary, went for a dip in the small hours of Sunday morning after he had danced every number at the hotel's regular Saturday night dance.

DECLARES WIFE SHOT AT HIM; ASKS DIVORCE

Sixteen years of continual fighting, topped off with three revolver shots, were more than Samuel Talmanson of Highland street, Revere, could stand, he declared in Suffolk Superior Divorce Court, where he is seeking freedom from his wife, Elizabeth, on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

A sharp tongue that wagged continually, and actual physical violence were among the many elements which Samuel said added to the discord in his married life.

"Oh, Judge, my wife she is a terrible woman," he moaned, after a recital of how he dodged the three bullets which he said she fired at him.

"My wife and I were separated," he testified. "One day I received a letter from my wife asking me to meet her in a house on Lucerne street to talk it over. While I was talking she pulled out a revolver without warning and fired a shot at me. If I had sat an inch nearer the tea box I would have hit me. It hit the ice chest.

"Then, realizing I should defend myself I picked up the chair and she fired twice more. Those shots went into the wall. I couldn't get those bullets without tearing down the wall. So I did not get them."

"Another time she knocked me down. Then she grabbed a grapefruit and smashed it on the floor under the table. She has a terrible temper."

Under cross examination Samuel had a hard time. He had a succession of verbal tilts with Attorney James Wisser, counsel for Mrs. Talmanson. The case will be resumed today.

5 HURLED FROM BEDS AS AUTO HITS HOUSE

The five young children of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin, of No. 9 Ford street, Lynn, were thrown from their beds early today when an auto truck containing four young men and four women crashed through the front door of their home.

The truck is registered in the name of John Magee, a milk dealer of No. 25 Presley street, Malden. Speeding in Maple street, the driver apparently lost control while his companions were singing and yelling.

Near Ford street, the driver attempted to stop the truck, but it continued over the sidewalk through the fence on the property of Elmer Dodge, across his lawn and then through another fence, which separates Martin's land from Dodge's.

PRIZE BULL DIES AS FARM BURNS

Turner, Me., Sept. 25.—The large set of farm buildings, known as the Alonzo Conant place, together with thirteen head of registered stock, including a $3,000 prize bull, owned by George W. Bean, were destroyed by fire which started from an undetermined cause in the barn.

The loss is placed at $40,000 with $4,000 insurance.

Mr. Bean, a former Representative to the Legislature and a resident of West Minot, until he purchased the Conant farm, is widely known.

OLD HARDING PAPER NOW INDEPENDENT

Marion, O., Sept. 25.—The Marion Star, formerly owned by President Harding, hereafter will be an independent newspaper, its present publishers announced.

Roy D. Moore and L. B. Brush, Ohio men, who purchased the Star from Mr. Harding and its morning contemporary, the Marion Tribune, made the announcement in conjunction with notice that they had suspended publication of the Tribune.

THIEVES SET FIRE TO STOLEN HUB AUTO

An automobile, registered in the name of Frank Greenberg, of No. 16 Harpswell street, Roxbury, was found by the Saugus police destroyed by fire. The machine was reported stolen from in front of Mechanics Building. The car had been stripped of all accessories before being fired.

Half of Us Unclothed, He Says, but You'd Never Know It

Chicago, Sept. 25.—About 50 per cent. of the American male population is practically in rags, Fred Volland, president of the National Association of Retail Clothiers, declared at a meeting of the association here today, adding that the retail clothier stands in the midst of a virgin field of endeavor. Last year only 32 hats were sold for each 100 American men and 64 suits were sold for each 100 men, he said.

This means, he said, "that should a series of material misfortunes engulf American men overnight about one-half either would have to seek refuge in overalls or go to bed.

Outside appearances of the average male are even better than the clothing found underneath, he said.

2 SAVED FROM DROWNING THEMSELVES

Springfield, Sept. 25.—Police were sent to the Connecticut River and to the Watershop Pond to rescue two men who attempted suicide within a few minutes of each other.

Frederick St. George, No. 162 Quincy street, following a quarrel with his wife, threatened to jump into the Watershop Pond from the New Haven railroad bridge, and left his home.

His wife notified the police, and rushed to the pond. A large crowd had gathered when the police arrived in an ambulance with a pulmotor and grappling irons. No trace of the man was found in the pond or in the woods nearby. It is not known if he carried out his threat.

At about the same time, Earl Kerr, eighteen years old, No. 64 Sylvan street, jumped into the Connecticut River from the Hampden County Memorial Bridge, in the presence of numerous witnesses.

Patrolman Victor Petcrault, on traffic duty at the bridge, put out in a row boat and rescued Kerr, whom he found clinging to one of the bridge piers with his head barely above the river surface. Kerr was arrested on a charge of drunkenness.

It was learned he had commanded a taxi driver to take him to the bridge to "pay the cop," and that as the taxi reached the center of the bridge, Kerr jumped from the cab and vaulted the bridge rail.

MAN KILLS AND CUTS UP BODY OF ENEMY

Youngstown, O., Sept. 25.—Louis Rossi, 34, well-known amateur baseball player, confessed that he killed Nick Ferrio, 34, during a row at Rossi's home, dismembered the body, even decapitating Ferrio, and later buried the parts.

Retaliation for an alleged assault led Rossi first to beat Ferrio's skull in with a baseball bat, and later hack the body to pieces after it was discovered by his two children, Clara, 12, and Adam 13, secreted in a closet under the stairway.

Rossi pleaded guilty to a charge of murder in the first degree.

TWO ARRESTED WITH PARKED AUTO LOOT

Detectives on the special squad to catch thieves looting automobiles parked downtown by theatregoers arrested George Richards of New York and Harry Elkins of Providence. They had taken two bags from machines parked in Summer street, police say. At No. 7 Warrenton street, South End, where the men were rooming, three more bags were found. They were arraigned in Municipal Court today charged with larceny.

RUM FOUND IN FATAL SOCIETY AUTO CRASH

Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 25.—Miss Adele Ryan, daughter of John Barry Ryan and granddaughter of Thomas Fortune Ryan, who is in Monmouth Memorial Hospital here with a fractured skull as the result of an automobile collision in which Lewis Gordon Norrie, Princeton athlete, was fatally injured and seven others less seriously hurt, was reported by hospital physicians to have improved during the day.

Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan arrived from Stockbridge, Mass., and are at their daughter's bedside.

It became known today that Miss Jane Scales of Richmond, Va., was one of the injured whose names were withheld by the institution after receiving treatment for minor injuries. Another of those whose names were withheld was L. S. Preston.

County detectives were endeavoring today to ascertain the nature of an alleged party which was said to have taken place at a roadhouse near Asbury Park and from which Norrie was returning at the time of the accident. Chief of Police White said that liquor had been found in one of the cars, but he refused to indicate which. It was learned that two bottles of whiskey and a bottle of vichy were recovered from the wreckage.

MINISTER QUITS ANTI-SALOON "FANATICS"

Hartford, Ct., Sept. 25.—Because he is opposed to the Anti-Saloon League as "a propaganda organization of teetotalling fanatics," Rev. G. Herbert Elkins has resigned as assistant State superintendent of the league.

In a published statement today Mr. Elkins frankly admitted that he hasn't any confidence "that America will stand permanently against light wines and beers."

He said that, because he is English, he has been "heretical" enough to stand up in meetings of the Anti-Saloon League and say "it will take more than your propaganda to convince me that there is no virtue in a bottle of Bass."

He revealed that the Anti-Saloon League in Connecticut has been operating on a budget of $25,000 a year, and that in spite of what he called generous contributions from the churches, there has been a deficit, which had been made up by the national organization. He said he did not feel that the league in this State was doing effective work.

SCIENTISTS BATTLE GALE 11 DAYS IN SMALL CRAFT

Nome, Alaska, Sept. 25 (A. P.)—A story of an eleven-day battle against lowering seas lashed by a Bering Sea gale was told by members of the United States Geological Survey party from Point Barrow, who have arrived at Teller on the thirteen-ton schooner Teddy Bear.

The Teddy Bear, commanded by Captain Joe Bernard, was driven from Point Hope, north of Kotzebue Sound, to St. Lawrence Island, opposite Nome, thence to Sledge Island and thence back through Bering Strait to Shisma Reef inlet, a distance of 500 miles, before the storm subsided enough for the vessel to proceed on her regular course.

Captain Bernard was on deck most of the time and only his seamanship and knowledge of the northern waters enabled the little schooner to win through.

WOMAN PHYSICIAN IN ROBB CASE

Children to Decide Their Own Fate

HUNTED JOB IN LAZY HUBBY'S SHIRT

So poverty-stricken was Mrs. Towns because of her husband's aversion to work that she had to hunt for a job wearing one of his shirts. She was cheerfully awarded a divorce.

MRS. BLANCHE E. TOWNS

WOMAN M.D. SUSPECT IN ROBB CASE

Police Check Up Movements of Physician Living Near Accused Slayer

By BERT FORD.

State police today checked up on a Back Bay woman physician as a possible associate of Dr. William M. Robb, alleged slayer of Mrs. Alice M. Wolschendorf, of East Bridgewater, Tyngsboro suit case victim. The latest woman suspect has an office not a great distance from Dr. Robb's apartments at No. 353 Massachusetts avenue.

State Detectives were ordered to locate and bring into the office of District Attorney Arthur K. Reading today a nurse said to have been in the employ of Dr. Robb recently. This woman was to have kept an appointment at Mr. Reading's office on Monday. She made no appearance.

"We expect much from this woman," said the district attorney today. "If she did not actually assist Dr. Robb we believe she knows the name of the woman who did so."

Next in interest to this clew was the announcement that counsel for Dr. Robb were to file specifications today in connection with their attack on the validity of the first degree indictment returned against their client.

Mrs. Alice Wolschendorf

Dr. William M. Robb

These specifications will deal with the evidence submitted to the Grand Jury which indicted Dr. Robb on the charge of murder and which returned two bills against Dr. Dalva H. Swope of Brockton, charging him with being an accessory to murder before and after the fact.

Judge McLeod was expected to render his decision today on the pleas in abatement made by counsel for both Dr. Robb and Dr. Swope, but introduction of specifications may delay the court's finding until tomorrow.

These developments will also further delay pleas by the accused physicians. There remains to be argued Attorney James W. Murdoch's motion to have Dr. Swope admitted to bail. If the court should grant this request, District Attorney Reading will demands bonds as high as $20,000. Dr. Swope and his wife are said to own sufficient property to furnish bail in excess of that amount.

Lawrence Marriages Break All Records in City's History

Lawrence, Sept. 25.—Cupid is working night and day in Lawrence and the marriage intentions filed thus far this year are the largest in the history of the city. A total of 1,074 Lawrence couples were married last year, this number being 44 less than the year previous.

The Rev. Mariano Milanese, pastor of the Holy Rosary Church, holds the year's record of 105 marriages with John J. Daly, assistant clerk of the city, second with 52.

There have been 928 marriage intentions filed against 764 at the corresponding period last year and 803 in 1921.

2 BALLOONS ARE STILL MISSING IN FATAL RACE

Brussels, Sept. 25. (A.P.)—The Belgian balloon Belgica, competing in the James Gordon Bennett cup race, is reported to have been seen over Norway last evening, while the French entry, Picardy, piloted by Delsalme and Ravaine, is said to have landed in Poland, according to reports received here today.

Only one of the five carrier pigeons which Pilot Veenstra had aboard the Belgian Prince Leopold has come back, and this is taken as a good sign.

Lieut. Robert S. Olmsted

Lieut. John W. Shoptaw

The British balloon, Margaret, which fell into the sea near Skagen, Denmark, will be disqualified in conformity with the rule forbidding the contestants to alight on the sea, Pilots Allen and Berry, in the Margaret's car, were saved.

Today only the Swiss balloon, Helvetia and the Spanish entry, Espheria, had not been heard from.

The bodies of Lieutenant Robert S. Olmsted and John W. Shoptaw, the two American army officers who were killed in the wreck of the balloon S-6, have been given into the possession of the American ambassador at the Hague.

Military honors will be accorded to the victims of the accidents. The funerals will be held either Wednesday of Thursday.

HOLD FAKE PRINCE FOR THEFTS

Harold Schwarm, the Dandy Dishwasher, and His Wife in Trouble Again

By Universal Service.

Hartford, Ct., Sept. 25.—Somehow Prince Henry De Chatoroux De Bussigny De Bourbon cannot keep out of the newspapers or out of jail, either.

"Prince De Bourbon"

"The scion of royalty," sometimes known as the "Quince Prince," the "Duke De Dishrag" and other pretty terms, but in reality Harold Schwarm, efficient dishwasher, and his wife, booked as Lillian Vilkemerson Van De Vere, are under arrest here again charged with shop-lifting.

ONCE SOCIETY PET.

Harold, posing as "Prince of Bourbon," once was welcomed into the bosom of New York society until he ate with his knife or made some such faux pas and was discovered to be a dish-washer.

That was some time ago, then Harold was sent to jail for perjury, having sworn falsely to his name when marrying Lillian, now sharing his misfortunes. He insists his name is Van De Vere, and so it reads on the police blotter. The first name is Reginald.

The police declare Harold and Lillian planned to open a tea room and curio shop on the Berlin, Turnpike, and that Lillian, who is booked as a "pathologist," but admits to being a saleslady, undertook to gather a stock of curios from the store in which she worked.

HELPED CARRY CURIOS.

It is also charged that Harold, after his day's work in the kitchen of a hot-dog wagon, used to meet Lillian to help her carry home the curios.

Harold told the police he had spent $3,000 getting ready to open his store. He severely criticised Lillian in the police station for "talking too much."

PAWNS IN DISPUTE OF DIVORCED PAIR

RUTH AND HELEN UNDERHILL

The divorced parents, Henry E. and Laura Underhill, dispute the custody of the children and Judge Dolan in Suffolk Probate Court is expected to decide the question Saturday.

FATHER AND MOTHER DIVORCED

Question of Custody of Three Underhill Tots Basis of Legal Battle

Henry Underhill, Jr., ten years old, and his two sisters, Ruth, seven years old, and Helen, eight, are to speak for themselves in the weighty matter of choosing their favorite parent.

Henry E. Underhill of Hingham and his former wife, Laura, of Audubon road, Back Bay, are being weighed in the balance. On Saturday Judge Dolan in Suffolk Probate Court will listen to what their three little children have to tell him.

The Underhills were divorced fourteen months ago, after Mrs. Underhill sued on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. The husband then married a Hingham girl. Now they have started a legal battle for possession of the children.

According to Mrs. Matilde LesCarbeau, of No. 3 Harrington street, Waverly, where the two girls have been boarded, the children are going to choose their mother.

"Henry, the boy, has lived with his father, but doesn't like to. The mother is unable to provide a home because she never worked until recently. The father, on the other hand, has remarried and has a baby," she said.

Charles L. Currier of the State department for the prevention of cruelty to children has been named temporary guardian.

DESERTED WIFE IS AWARDED DIVORCE

Looking for a job in her husband's size 16 shirt, with the sleeves rolled up and a bit of lace tacked to the collar band proved too much for Mrs. Blanche Elizabeth Towns, who is not more than five feet tall and weighs less than 100 pounds, and she obtained a divorce from James C. Towns in the Suffolk County Superior Court here.

Mrs. Towns said that her non-providing husband's yawn was his philosophy of life and that he finally deserted her in 1919 after four years, and went South, where he could yawn better in the luxurious climate. Judge Fox, in granting as well that the husband had not come back. They were married in Lynn in 1915 and later lived in Boston.

BALK RUM PLOT, GIRL AND MAN SEIZED

What the police believe may have been the forepart of a liquor smuggling plot was nipped when a man and a woman were arrested today in an expensive touring car near a shipyard at Jeffries Point, East Boston.

It was near the shipyard that 600 gallons of alcohol on two trucks was captured a week ago.

The man gave his name as Charles Moore of Toledo, O. The woman said she was Mrs. Esther Price of Elizabeth, N. H. Later, she told the police her home was in Groveton, N. H.

Moore will be charged with operating an automobile without a license pending an investigation, and the woman, who was photographed in the rogues' gallery, will be released.

PAPERS DOUBLE IN SIZE IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 25 (I.N.S.)—The backbone of the outlaw pressmen's strike in the New York newspaper field appeared definitely broken today.

The morning papers which have been issuing eight-page editions for a week appeared this morning with sixteen pages; classified pages and regular features are being carried again. The editions, however, still appear as the "Combined New York Newspapers."

Various groups of strikers are endeavoring to get their jobs back, seeking a compromise, but their efforts have met with little success, as the publishers have refused to deal with them, sticking to the agreement in deal with George L. Berry, president of the international union, who "outlawed" the local union.

GUARD KILLS WOMAN IN MISTAKE OF DUTY

Cleveland, O., Sept. 25. (I.N.S.)—Mrs. Margaret Dunn, eighteen, was shot and killed when, with her husband and three companions they drove into the grounds of the Warrensville Workhouse today. A guard, who is held in connection with the shooting, told the authorities that he thought a jail delivery was being attempted.

MUSICIAN BADLY INJURED BY AUTO

Abington, Sept. 25.—Edward Taylor, twenty-six, of No. 77 Farragut road, South Boston, was struck by an automobile owned by H. M. Nightingale of Rockland as he was crossing to enter the Casin Inn, where he is a member of the orchestra. The car was operated by Harold Nightingale of Rockland, who was accompanied by his mother. Taylor was injured internally.

GEN. EDWARDS WALKS POST AT HEN HOUSE

Major General Clarence R. Edwards, U. S. A. (retired), now commander of the Massachusetts department, American Legion, did guard duty in his own back yard at "Donerovng" in Westwood. With the weary tread of a poor private doing company punishment, he walked post in front of his private hen pen.

Some chicken thief sneaked away with seventy-five of the general's hand-raised, blue-blooded, prize-winning Plymouth Rocks, and the veteran warrior was out in arms to resist any possible return of the raiding party.

OBEYS COURT ORDER BY ESCAPING JAIL

Elmira, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Escaping from an officer who was escorting him back to a cell in the Chemung County jail after his arraignment on an assault charge, preferred by his wife, Elmer Sabins, 28, in leaving town unwittingly carried out the will of the court that he remain away from his wife.

Sabins had left his wife some months ago and lived in Erie, Pa., but returned last week. An agreement on an old matter ended in Sabins striking his wife. Mrs. Sabinstold the court that she would be satisfied if he were ordered to stay away from her.

DORCHESTER MAN DYING AFTER SUICIDE ATTEMPT

Patrick J. Linehan, thirty-two years old, single, attempted suicide by slashing his throat and arms with a sharp instrument in the bathroom of his home at No. 18 Lyons street, Dorchester.

Linehan was found by his sister, Mary McCarthy, who immediately summoned Dr. Kelley of No. 1281 Dorchester avenue. At the City Hospital his name was placed on the danger list. Despondency was advanced by his friends as the probable cause of the suicide attempt.

GIRL WITH $4,000 IN LINING OF JACKET TAKES POISON

Philadelphia, Sept. 25.—With nearly $4,000 in the lining of her jacket, and wearing two diamond rings, Florence Collins, twenty-five years old, of No. 235 West End avenue, New York, was found unconscious, the victim of mysterious poisoning, on her bed in the Irving Hotel here. She is an attractive woman, expensively dressed. The woman regained consciousness at the hospital long enough to mutter, "It was all a mistake—I didn't mean to take poison." She added she was married and then lapsed into unconsciousness again.

HUB SUB-MASTER, WAR VET, ENDS LIFE BY SHOOTING

Billerica, Sept. 25.—Robert B. Houghton, sub-master of the Harvard School, Charlestown, shot himself in the head at his home in Billerica Center and died shortly after.

During the World War he served overseas in the 26th Division. He suffered from shell shock and after his return from overseas had been despondent. He is survived by his wife, his mother, three sisters and a brother.

MOTHER HOPED CAR WRECK WOULD HIDE POISONING OF TOTS

Elkhorn, Wis., Sept. 25.—Detailing the manner in which she gave poison to her four children last Friday, Mrs. Myrtle Schaude, 36, of White Wafer, told Alfred L. Godfrey, district attorney of Walworth County, that she "gave the children the poisoned candy just before they were leaving for an automobile ride in the belief that when it took effect the machine would be hopelessly wrecked and it would appear that all had been killed in an accident." Authorities are planning to place a charge of first degree murder against Mrs. Schaude in connection with the death of her husband 2½ years ago. Mrs. Schaude told Attorney Godfrey that she had killed her husband by giving him poisoned candy. The murder charge will be based on this act, pending the complete recovery of the children.

ECLIPSE PHOTOS HURT BY CLOUDS

Philadelphia, Sept. 25.—Doubt as to whether photographs of the Star Field surrounding the sun, taken by the expedition of Swarthmore College during the recent solar eclipse, will have any scientific value in determining the truth of the Einstein theory, was expressed today by members of the party, upon their return from Mexico, where the pictures were taken.

Professor Ross Marriott stated that clouds had obscured the sun for a great part of the time, and that their shadows were clearly visible on many of the plates. But 50 per cent, of the work will have any scientific value, he said.

Due to the great amount of work involved it probably will be several months before definite announcement as to the outcome of the expedition could be made.

'LOYALTIES' IS BRILLIANTLY PLAYED

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

IF "Loyalties" had been written by a less faithful student of dramatic literature than John Galsworthy, you would have no difficulty in believing he was making a brave attempt to promote Jewish propaganda and was having a little difficulty in making his characters Semites.

Instead you were treated at the Tremont Theatre last evening to a good dose of moderate melodrama in English accent, written in a fashion that should catch the fancy of playgoers who take their drama seriously and who believe a good play is one that superimposes mere story with sound construction and smoothly running dialogue.

"Loyalties" was all of that, with an abundance of well knit dialogue and very little action.

TAME AS MELODRAMA.

As a melodrama of crime "Loyalties" will satisfy only those who have a taste for the academic drama constructed on plans of the experts. Dramatic literature is well served with this Galsworthy play, and close students of the theatre will find it mentally inviting —if not invigorating.

But it must be conceded that the story can like a narration in a popular novel, laid down in proper sequence and told with about as much vim as you would find in a volume of fiction borrowed from the nearest circulating library.

As an instrument of human characterization, "Loyalties" presented every day types of upper class Englishmen in the tones and colors that must be familiar to those who read the best sellers from London. As a melodrama of crime it was tame, if measured by the popular native standard, but it was at all times brilliantly played.

If it lacked the fire and zest of our own best thrillers and still held its audience to close interest, it was because Galsworthy writes more for the intelligencia than for the mind that can enjoy and understand only the simple dramatic effects of the more or less common Broadway school.

THRILLS LACKING.

"Loyalties" was interesting because its story was told in the most direct way—and without frills. Embellished with strong scenes and direct action it would have lost much of its beauty. Hy any rule of measurement, however, it was good dramatic fare, but you couldn't raise the tiniest thrill from any of its action.

The outstanding performance of the evening was contributed by James Dale, who played an angry, determined Jewish gentleman with rare repression. Being robbed by a high-class Gentile, with a war record, brought inward disturbance, but failed to ruffle his exterior. Mr. Dale gave an impressive performance.

Charles Quartermaine, in the unhappy role of Captain Dancy, D. S. O., proved himself such a thorough rotter that your admiration for his talent was easily won. Of the women in the company, Ottola Nesmith and Cynthia Latham gave fair support to the artistic requirements of their roles.

"Loyalties" proved itself good literary food, perfectly safe for tricky digestions.

MELODRAMA AT ST. JAMES IS WELL PLAYED

Melodrama made its season's debut at the St. James Theatre with the opening of that play of revenge plus, "It Is the Law," from the story of the same title by Hayden Talbot, dramatized by Elmer Rice. The play is one of dramatic moments, not overdone, but put over in a gripping and convincing way by the Boston Stock Company.

Smashing as well as unexpected is the climax wherein the same law which imprisons an innocent man for a murder of which he is innocent, by a quirk of fate, absolves him of the actual murder of the same victim after he has been freed. Hence the title—also the closing lines—"It is the Law."

The part of Ruth Cummings, the cause of it all, is specially adapted to the talents of Adelyn Bushnell, who handled in admirably, taking legitimate toll of applause from the capacity house. Jill Middleton was most piquant and charming in the secondary part of Lillian Cummings, her admirers "saying it with flowers" as well as with hands.

Walter Gilbert was effective as always, this time in the role of Justin Victor, the successful lover, banished to prison on his honeymoon night for the weird plot of his rival and loved chum, Albert Woodruff. In this part Edward Darney met the exactions of playing temporary insanity, induced by prenatal influence—another unusual twist to an unusual book—in a manner deserving high praise.

ROARING LIONS IN GAYETY BURLESQUE

Clever comedians, pretty girls and awesome lions—the lions behind steel bars, by the way—contributed their talents at the Gayety Theatre yesterday to make "Happy Go Lucky" one wonderful show.

The "big cats" are Delmar's Fighting Lions, who go through a series of amazing feats under the expert guidance of their darling trainer. The animal act, one of the most celebrated in the stage or circus world today, is unusual in burlesque and added one more scene to the many triumphs of this production.

Kelso Brothers were the comedy riot. They (Harry and Joe) are the featured comedians of "Happy Go Lucky." Harry plays an eccentric Irish and Joe is the "straight" man.

The show is replete with feminine beauty. Florence Darcy, prima donna, sings superbly. Arline Johnson is a charming ingenue and Maude Hilton is just what a soubrette should be, pretty, pert and snappy.

The chorus—twenty of 'em—is just one girl after another.

MORE PRAISE FOR MARION DAVIES

Following in the wake of its phenomenal success at the new Cosmopolitan Theatre, where it is in the eighth week of an indefinite engagement, "Little Old New York" starring Marion Davies, is achieving an unprecedented triumph in London, where is is showing at the Empire Theatre. The paeans of praise which were sung to the picture at its opening abroad continue to swell in chorus. Of "Little Old New York" the London Star says:

Marion Davies

Refreshingly unlike many films which have been featured lately is "Little Old New York," which began a season last night at the Empire, Leicester square. Its very simplicity is its charm; its naivete its attraction.

It is free from over-exaggerated scenes. There are no unreal villains and no triangular "passions."

But for all that there is never a dull moment in the film; from beginning to end it grips, and the fascination is that of reality.

The story of "Little Old New York" is that of the great American city as it was more than a century ago. The film, which is adapted from the play of Rida Johnson Young, by Luther Reed, is a Cosmopolitan-Goldwyn production.

It is a story full of quaint humor, of pathos and of excitement. It made the audience laugh, held them tense and breathless, and sometimes had them on the verge of tears.

The principal part, that of Patricia O'Day, the daughter of an impoverished Irish family, is played by Miss Marion Davies, and a fascinating, roguish colleen she is, though her sympathetic eyes and her girlish Irish tenderness seem likely at times to be her undoing.

The film is one of the best that has yet been seen in London, and is certainly one of the most charming.

"THANK-U" MOVES INTO THE HOLLIS

"Thank-U," a comedy by Tom Cushing and Winchell Smith began its first engagement at the Hollis last evening. The play is produced by John Golden, who is also responsible for "Lightnin'," "Turn to the Right," and other American comedies of great popularity. "Thank-U" will be reviewed in Wednesday's Boston American.

An Unfailing Way To Banish Hairs Use Delatone

(Beauty Notes)

Ugly hair growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.

FILMED NOVEL SCORES AT FENWAY

The motion picture version of A. S. M. Hutchinson's popular novel, "If Winter Comes," which reigned as a best seller for a long period, is having its first Boston presentation at the Fenway Theatre in the William Fox production made through co-operation with the author. The authenticity of this screen translation, however, does not depend alone upon the approbation of its faithful transcription by the author himself, but the host of readers who have pictured in their minds the characters and their adventures. From the manner of the production's exception yesterday it is quite apparent that this judgment is one of unqualified approval. In fact, the characters and the incidents in which they lived seem to proceed forth from the printed pages.

The story of Mark Sabre's tremendous sacrifice and love romance was so told by the author as to enlist full sympathy from every heart. He pictured this character with remarkable detail and presents as foil a number of other diversified personages, chief among which is a lovely woman, who is finally won by the splendid qualities of the hero. This woman, Lady Nona Tybar, is only second to the hero in providing interest. Comedy also has its place in providing cheer through such admirable characters as High Jinks and Low Jinks and the townsfolk of the little English village in which the chief incidents are placed.

The scenes were taken in England, which fact gives sterling veracity to the entire spirit of direction is affinity with the author's lines.

A cast that well merits the hackneyed term "perfect" is pictured, with Percy Marmont as Mark Sabre and Ann Forrest as Nona. Others in the cast are Sidney Herbert, Arthur Metcalf, William Riley Hatch, Raymond Bloomer, Walter Kolb, Margaret Fielding, Leslie King, Gladys Leslie and Dorothy Allen.

Coming Events

Ballet's Chauve-Souris, under the direction of Morris Gest, will be the attraction at the Shubert, beginning next Monday.

"Six Cylinder Love," will be Mr. Giles' offering at the St. James theatre next week.

Tommy Martelle in "The Fashion Girl" is announced as the attraction at the Somerville theatre next week.

MAY YOHE REVIVES MEMORIES AT KEITH'S

Present day theatregoers who are curious to know just how their father's tastes in things theatrical ran a score or more years ago can satisfy their curiosity by visiting Keith's Theatre this week and listening to May Yohe, the one time Lady Francis Hope, sing "If I Were Only You" and "Dear Old Georgia."

May, just the same as when she bowled them over in the same old theatre on Washington street, or at the Tivoli in Sydney, or the Empire in dear old Lunnon, sings just the same and actually is the same. Fortunately now she carries a jazz band with her.

Rae Samuels is the other featured headliner. She sang half a dozen songs and the audience liked her.

The real hits of the show were an added team, Hennessy and Moore. It is a pity the male half did not play his violin some more. Others who entertained were Ed. Lowry, Lane and Freeman, Inez Courtney with Keyes and Paterson in a pleasing dance number, and Lytell and Fant.

"MAD HONEYMOON" AT THE SOMERVILLE

Screams of laughter rocked the Somerville Theatre last evening when "The Mad Honeymoon," a farcical melodrama written by Barrie Connors and recently produced by William A. Brady at his playhouse in New York City, was shown for the first time in stock. The story, which travels at unusual speed, has to do with an elopement under embarrassing circumstances and the theft of a large amount of bonds, the attempt of crooks to implicate a formal pal now turned straight. Many exciting as well as amusing situations develop in rapid order. The piece provides every member of Mr. McArdle's organization an opportunity to do some clever work.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff "USE LIQUID ARVON"

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

PLEASED ANOTHER WOMAN BY DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

Not long ago a woman on Lamson St., East Boston (Mass.), gave out a praiseworthy letter which appeared in newspapers. She mentioned how thankful she was for having been told about a constipation medicine known as Dr. True's Elixir.

Now another resident, Mrs. Rogers, of 108 Falcon St., East Boston, writes: "I still have Dr. True's Elixir, for it surely benefits me; I have a good appetite and eat everything that I want, could not get along as good as I do if I did not take Dr. True's Elixir. It is surely a wonderful medicine. I never felt any better than now since I took the Elixir."

In East Boston and everywhere else there are women, men and children who, also, can be made better in health by using Dr. True's Elixir. 40c—80c—$1.20.

PUNCHO PANCHO VILLA EASY WINNER OVER TONY THOMAS

BIG CROWD SEES THE BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY.

Pancho Villa, like John Brown's soul, still goes marching on.

Tony Thomas, nineteen-year-old New Bedford ring flash, was the latest victim of the spectacular little Filipino.

Pancho Pancho, bobbing around the ring like a rubber ball, had the margin in each of the ten rounds in his twelve-w. h Thomas at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building last night. Kirby knocked out "Muggsy," who passed the contest. Three thousand persons were unable to gain admittance to the battle so great was the interest in the tussle between the world's flyweight champion and the class of the New England bantam weights.

Villa was obliged to make the fight all the way. Thomas appeared awed by the fact he was opposed to a champion and was over cautious.

Instead of jabbing from left to beat and in close, then ducking to the south wind rush to close quarters whenever possible and cling on to Villa.

THOMAS' TACTICS MAKE THE BOUT VERY SLOW

In the early stages of the bout these tactics made the affair very slow. As the contest progressed, Thomas tried and was able to land a few blows. This enabled him again to lure his opponent off in the clinches and score with heavy punches to the head and body.

It was compelled Thomas to open up and fight. When forced into a corner or ropes under a volley of punches Thomas would show some fighting spirit and slash out with a right hand to [illegible]. Some of them [illegible] seemed to make [illegible] Villa fight all the [illegible]

WOULD HAVE DONE MUCH BETTER IF HE HAD FOUGHT.

Thomas would have fared much better than he did if he had risked more exchanges of blows with the champion. The New Bedford youth had a weight advantage of five pounds and an could have caused considerable damage to Pancho if he had got all of his power behind his punches.

It was the first defeat suffered by Thomas since he started boxing as a professional. In reply to the New Bedford youngster it should be stated he didn't show that the fight shows he exhibited on his two Saturday outings with Al Ferguson.

IT LOOKED AS IF HE HAD CASE OF STAGE FRIGHT

Apparently Tony had a case of stage fright. It was his first big fight, while he was also showing before the greatest crowd of his career.

More than 500 fans made the trip from New Bedford to root for Thomas. They presented the Whaling City youth with a silver cup just before the battle started. Then like most other boxers and ball players who are honored by the home folks Thomas blew up.

Villa gave his usual spectacular exhibition of fighting. He bobbed all over the ring, shot punches from every angle and several occasions had his opponent in distress. Thomas' holding tactics, however, took a great deal off Villa's effectiveness.

VILLA RECEIVED $2,000 OF THE $17,000 TAKEN IN.

The receipts for the show were about $17,500. Villa received $2,000. While Thomas was paid $1,200.

Johnny Russell of Cambridge was the referee, while Pat Moran and Nobby Gaskins acted as judges.

Victor Hugh of Malden won over Jack Schoendorf of Milwaukee in a fast eight round semi-final. The referee was Jimmy Wells and those who were very much to choose between the two boxers at the finish.

TRACY FERGUSON WON OVER AL SEARS.

Tracy Ferguson of Meriden, Ct., won over Al Sears of East Boston in an eight round mill. Spike Hennessy of Waltham won over Red O'Grady of the U. S. Navy in another eight rounder.

Ed Dixon refereed the preliminaries and handled the task well.

Commissioners Brickley and Lane occupied seats at the ringside and enjoyed the show. Commissioner Lane, by the way, intends to follow the policies of the commission since it started to elevate the ring game in this state. In this respect he is doing very good by sports, as the Massachusetts Boxing Commission has done more efficient work than any similar organization in this country.

FOWLER'S HOME RUN DEFEATS THE GIANTS

[illegible] Sept. 25.—A home run by an unknown college [illegible] Fowler, who pinch hitted for Pitcher Causey, defeated the Giants 3 to 2 this afternoon.

And now Ed Rand has visions of [illegible] for the Man McGraw.

In the seventh inning with the score tied and two out, Fowler hit the first ball for a home run. There were two on the sacks, and that blow proved sufficient.

Massachusetts Savings Bank LIFE INSURANCE

Supervised and Aided by The Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Cheapest and Best for the every-day citizen

For men, women and children of Massachusetts only; ages from one to sixty-five years.

Removal from the Commonwealth does not affect the policy.

Annual Dividends

The annual dividends have been a large factor in the low cost of this insurance. The banks employ no paid solicitors and there are no stockholders; all profits, after expenses are deducted, are returned to the policy-holders or set aside for their benefit.

Premiums are payable

Monthly, Quarterly, Semi-annually or Annually

Investigate also the merits of the Ten-Year Savings-Insurance Plan

It provides $1000 in ten years by making small monthly deposits, and includes a straight life insurance policy during the period of saving.

For full particulars enquire at any of the 95 agencies where you see this sign or write to Room 207, State House, Boston.

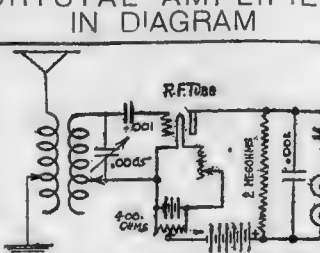
TONIGHT'S PROGRAMS FOR RADIO FANS

TUBE EASILY ADAPTED TO CRYSTAL

CRYSTAL AMPLIFIER IN DIAGRAM



BUILDS UP WEAK SIGNALS

If you are using a crystal detector for listening in there are times when you would like to amplify the signals. This can be easily done if the parts are available and the proper connections made. Of course, it must be assumed that the crystal detector set includes a variocoupler or loose coupler, a 43 plate variable condenser, a crystal detector, a pair of telephone receivers and a .001 fixed telephone condenser.

The extra parts needed would be an amplifying vacuum tube, with socket, an A battery, rheostat and B battery with potentiometer.

CURRENT AMPLIFIED.

In this receiving set the oscillating currents set up by the received waves are amplified by the vacuum tube amplifier at radio frequency, that is, the same frequency with which they surge in the antenna circuit. These amplified currents are then passed on to the crystal detector, where they are rectified, that is converted into pulsating direct currents, which then flow through and operate the head telephones.

In setting up the crystal detector amplifying receiving set, the aerial and ground are connected to the primary coil of the loose or variocoupler in the usual way as shown in the accompanying diagram. Then one end of the secondary coil is connected with one side of the fixed condenser and the other side to the grid of the amplifying tube

SHUNT CONDENSER.

The other end of the secondary coil is connected to one terminal of the filament and to the negative electrode of the A battery. The other terminal of the filament is connected to one end of the rheostat while the other connection of the rheostat is connected with the positive side of the A battery. The negative side of the B battery is connected on the movable arm of the potentiometer. The potentiometer is connected straight across the A battery to regulate the negative potential of the grid of the amplifying tube.

Finally connect the crystal detector to the set as shown with the head telephones in between the crystal and the end of the secondary coil of course the end connected to the positive of the B battery. While the potentiometer is not needed it is best to use it in this circuit.

Pennsylvania's Baneful Coal Export Tax

Governor [illegible] of Pennsylvania

Governor Cox's letter to Governor P[illegible] of Pennsylvania on the coal situation was well worth writing. Pennsylvania ought not to levy an export tax upon a necessary of life produced within the State any more than she ought to levy an import tax on a necessary of life imported from another State. It is even more of an evil to levy an export tax upon a necessary of life than to levy an import tax upon an ordinary article of consumption. It ought to be at least as unconstitutional to do the one as to do the other.

Our present National Constitution was framed by a convention called primarily because we could not have a prosperous and a united country under the old Articles of Confederation adopted during the Revolutionary War; and we could not have a united and prosperous country under the old Articles of Confederation because those old Articles permitted and did not expressly forbid the States to treat each other as foreign countries and to levy import duties upon products passing between the States. It would seem to be a very technical construction of our Constitution to allow an export tax and not to allow an import tax. Certainly the one is as baneful as the other, but when it is administered to a great necessary of life like coal, it is much [illegible]

Governor Cox's suggestion [illegible] Congress ought to exercise its authority to stop at the source that aggravating and vulgar practice of dishonesty—the selling of blackened stone as coal—is well made. Governor Cox is absolutely right when he says that the disgusting practice can only be effectually stopped at the mines, and the mines are within the jurisdiction of the State of Pennsylvania.

The success of Governor Pinchot's negotiation to stop the coal strike and to give the country coal this Winter may have aroused the jealousy and fear of a lot of reactionary Republicans who do not like a bone in Governor Pinchot's body and who fear the political power of a man who for years has shown himself to be so independent of politicians and big business interests, for whom the politicians work.

We imagine that the success of Governor Pinchot's conduct of the coal crisis has caused considerable alarm in Wall Street, and that everything will be done to take away from Governor Pinchot whatever credit he may deserve.

It may be that those who are asking Governor Pinchot to abolish the export tax, etc., knowing that the Governor might not be able to do it this season in the face of the united interests of Pennsylvania, seek thus to detract from the popular favor which seems to have been won by Governor Pinchot. In any event, he may be able to reply that the export tax only represents 16 cents on a ton, and that the excessive railroad charges represent a great many times that amount. He may be able to ask those who are emphasizing Pennsylvania's export tax—which, after all, goes to the whole people of the State—why they are so silent on the question of excessive railroad charges.

Both Governor Pinchot and Mr. Lewis, head of the miners, have stated that there should be no increase of price in coal this year, and there would be more if the railroads reduced their charges to a proper figure.

Of course, Governor Cox is doing his duty and doing it well in the coal situation. We hope he succeeds in getting this export tax abolished, whether by direct political action with the assistance of Governor Pinchot, or by the courts in which he is making a good fight, for even 16 cents on a ton is worth saving.

Futility of the League

[illegible]

The Boston Transcript very properly gets a great deal of comfort out of the Greek-Italian imbroglio for its most effective opposition to the League of Nations.

The Transcript is quite right in contending that nothing could better prove the utter futility of the League of Nations than this Greek-Italian affair at Corfu.

But we are not prepared to go so far as the Transcript in the repudiation of world obligations. Says the Transcript:

> [illegible] to be expected [illegible] Europe [illegible] unhesitatingly [illegible] break of the World War in 1914, it never [illegible] more than [illegible] peace of Europe [illegible] would [illegible] we are not concerned. The [illegible] which [illegible] unprovoked [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] affairs [illegible] neutral [illegible]

Our objection to the League of Nations was not that we were unwilling to help to be our brother's keeper or that we were unwilling to help to put our weak brothers on their feet and protect them from the strong, but that the League of Nations supplied no way of doing it, but only permanently entangled us in the bloody mess from which our more unfortunate brothers would attain little or no benefit, and from which we invited destruction.

We objected to the Quixotic character of the league; to the compulsion of helping nations which would not help themselves and did not want the only kind of help we would be willing to give them, but which is the kind of help which we would not be willing to give and which none of the proleaguers would dare suggest that we give.

We regard the League of Nations as nothing but an organization of the victors to keep the spoils and as an organization to defeat the very purposes for which we were invited into the league, and which alone anyone would dare to tell us was the purpose of the league.

The American people are always willing, in every single instance when it arises, to help give us a better world and to uplift humanity everywhere, to defend the weak and to repress the unjust. But we are not willing to commit ourselves in advance to an association of nations in whose good intent we have no confidence, and we see in every new event a confirmation of our suspicions that the League of Nations is nothing but a snare and a delusion.

ALL OUR SUDDEN ARISTOCRACY WAS THERE

By Herbert Kaufman

WHEN Louis XV.'s retired head gardener, Le Notre, revisited Versailles and was rolled about the grounds, he burst into tears, explaining to the King who walked beside him, that he was thinking of his father and how proud that old peasant would have been to know that his son was riding while royalty went afoot.

A large percentage of the 600 guests at Newport's supremely lavish affair last week might also have contrasted later positions with the conditions of their origin.

All our sudden aristocracy was present. Petroleum wells beamed upon steel mills, bank vaults coolly nodded to stock tickers, and together smirked at the exalted few who could boast of an entire century between grog selling, notion peddling, fur trading sires and their own haughty estates.

Many a grande dame there had wiped dishes in childhood and scores of gallants, who roamed among electric lighted bowers and basked in the rays of colored spot-lights, could recall the feel of a pick, the high pitch of cowhay boots or the motion of a measuring yardstick.

"And Some in Jeweled Gowns"

Meanwhile a mob of gogle-eyed common clay—nurse maids, bundle girls, boarding house mistresses—pressed against ropes obligingly stretched by the police department their souls swept with jealousy, admiration—and a determination instantly to join the Socialist party.

Please note that shrewd Messrs. Rockefeller, Morgan and Ford don't invite deluges by such taunting displays of wealth.

Nor do you find Alfonso mentioned in the list of guests attending the parade of human peacocks at Biarritz. That young man's dancing days are over. Industrial barons, too, would do well to read signs and curb vulgar and provocative exhibitions of affluence.

One dress, observed at the Biarritz festival masque, was trimmed with a pint of diamonds and pearls. Paris midinettes who sewed the jewels in place, probably got $10 for the job.

They Also Tried It on Du Barry

Makers of gowns flaunted around Newport and Deauville still receive 1914 rates—less than $10 a month—for their exquisite services.

Prices of millinery and robes have risen 500 per cent. since the war, but, for Rue de la Paix establishments, seam stresses are allowed to strike for a few extra francs, which, the girls explain, can alone save them from starvation—or worse.

Court memoirs indicate that times, in some respects, have changed but little since Madame Du Barry tried to exist on a shop apprentice's pittance.

The last nauseous twist of the Stokes chase shows how scandalously history repeats itself.

Noel Williams, Du Barry's biographer, declares that the Choiseul faction, jealous of the new favorite, unsuccessfully sought to bribe from notorious figures in the Paris underworld affidavits that would have lost her favor.

CRAFT WITH SAILS ARE PASSING

LONDON, Sept. 25—Sailing craft are fast vanishing from the oceans, according to Lloyd Register of Shipping, which states that the present percentage of sailing vessels to the world's tonnage is less than 4.

Last year the world's steam tonnage increased by 992,421 tons, says Lloyds, while the sailing tonnage decreased by nearly 200,000 tons.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON REAL RAINBOWS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I have just read your interesting article explaining rainbows. You say: 'In order to see a rainbow face to face one must have the sun at his back!' In Emerson Hough's book, 'The Covered Wagon,' he has two of the principal characters in the story greatly encouraged by seeing a rainbow in the west just before sunset, though due to causes similar to those which give rise to the appearance of rainbows. Now, this is no mere difference in the definition of words, for the two phenomena concerned ordinarily bear little likeness to one another, and they are produced in opposite conditions as respects the position of the observer, and the action of the raindrops, or of the atmospheric moisture, upon the rays of light.

With the rainbow the sun is necessarily at the observer's back, the shower of raindrops is in that part of the sky which is opposite to the sun, and the centers for the circles of the rainbow, only a part of which is ordinarily visible, is situated on a straight line projected from the sun through the observer's head and so onward to the plane of the bow.

With the halo the sun, as well as the phenomenon itself, is in front of the spectator, the halo appearing to surround the sun.

A RAINBOW in the west is perfectly possible, and is often seen, in the morning or early forenoon, when the sun is east of the meridian. But a rainbow in the west just before sunset is, as you suppose, an impossibility, unless the term "rainbow" be extended to include phenomena not placed by [illegible] cal science in the same category.

It is certain that Mr. Hough did not see a real rainbow in the west just before sunset, but there is no reason to doubt his statement that he saw something having a resemblance to a rainbow and which he supposed to be one.

What he saw was no doubt a solar halo, a phenomenon of a different order, though due to causes similar to those which give rise to the appearance of rainbows. Now, this is no mere difference in the definition of words, for the two phenomena concerned ordinarily bear little likeness to one another, and they are produced in opposite conditions as respects the position of the observer, and the action of the raindrops, or of the atmospheric moisture, upon the rays of light.

With the rainbow the sun is necessarily at the observer's back, the shower of raindrops is in that part of the sky which is opposite to the sun, and the centers for the circles of the rainbow, only a part of which is ordinarily visible, is situated on a straight line projected from the sun through the observer's head and so onward to the plane of the bow.

With the halo the sun, as well as the phenomenon itself, is in front of the spectator, the halo appearing to surround the sun.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

CLEOPATRA'S LOVES

By MARK STUYVESANT

ALTHOUGH Cleopatra was born sixty-nine years before the Christian era, her personality has endured through the ages. She has been without doubt the most discussed woman in history.

When Cleopatra was seventeen years old she was left by her father as joint heir with her brother, Ptolemy, to the throne of Egypt.

According to the custom of the Ptolemys, she was expected to marry her brother.

Very soon, however, her brother and her guardians deprived Cleopatra of her rights. But this condition did not last long. The undaunted queen retired to Syria and raised an army to defend her title and power.

Fortune was with her. For at this time Julius Caesar, who had recently defeated Pompey, arrived at Alexandria.

The great Caesar, one of the conquerors of the world, made an unconditional surrender in the fascinations of the Egyptian queen. So complete was her conquest over him that he immediately undertook a war against Ptolemy on her behalf.

Antony sent an invitation to Cleopatra to sup with him on his ship. But proudly she replied to the messenger:

"It is more fitting that you master should sup with me."

Again Cleopatra tried to conquer a third great Roman with her charms. But Octavius was adamant. He wanted nothing of the Egyptian except to take her to Rome to walk in chains behind his chariot in the triumph which was sure to be held in his honor.

Rather than submit to this humiliation, Cleopatra killed herself by allowing a poisonous asp to sting her with its deadly fangs.

Thus died one of the most notorious, if not truly notable, women of all times.

Those Romantic Round-Trip Pearls

And Just How the Baubles Bobbed Up in the Baggage of the "Millionaire Stevedore" After He Had Given Them to the Beauty

JANUARY, 1922—While James Auditore was host to Miss Jeanne Eagles and friends at a gay supper party aboard the S. S. La France, Miss Eagels, stepping out on deck, said an unknown" hand reached from the darkness, seized her $30,000 diamond necklace, and—flung it overboard!

MARCH, 1922—James Auditore was made defendant in a $100,000 damage suit filed by Miss Ethel C. Darrell, who claimed he struck her in the face and yanked off all her jewels while they were dining togeiher at a club in fashionable Saratoga.

The Bracelets, Pearl Earrings, Dog Collar and Ring, Valued at $100,000, Seized by U. S. Custom Officials in the Baggage of Frank Auditore.

AUGUST, 1923—When Frank Auditore, returning from Europe, was accused by customs officials of failing to declare $100,000 worth of pearls and other gems, he declined to discuss a report that he jerked the jewels from Miss Irene Wales on the steps of the Ritz Hotel, Paris, but admitted she had worn them as a gift from him.

Irene Wales, the Broadway Beauty Who Said Frank Auditore Gave Her the Pearls—and Then Grabbed Them Back.

Below, James Auditore, the "Rough Diamond," Twice a Picturesque Figure in Jewel Mysteries Similar to That in Which His Brother Is Mentioned

BROADWAY has a new set of nicknames for James and Frank Auditore, Brooklyn's famous "millionaire stevedores." Once Broadway spoke of them as "rough diamonds." But now, along the rialto, they are calling Jimmy Auditore "rough ON diamonds" and his brother, Frank, "rough on PEARLS." Just how and why the Auditores are thus tagged is a tale involving riches, romance, four charming beauties, and comical adventures on the high seas and in the high air.

The Auditores are two extraordinary members of an extraordinary family. With another brother, Joseph, who since died, they came to America from Italy several years ago in the steerage. They want to work as as stevedores on the Brooklyn waterfront. Their pay was thirty cents an hour.

Jimmy, who laid the foundation for the family fortune, had an hour for lunch every day. He spent it soliciting firms for a contract to load a vessel. He finally got a contract. He assembled the crew and started the job. But—he was not to get paid until the ship was loaded, and—he had to pay off his men by the week. Jimmy Auditore met the situation by browing money for his payroll from the very firm that gave him the contract!

That was his start. His brothers got theirs in much the same way. When war broke out in Europe, they had saved enough money to lease piers. Whoever owned a pier in Brooklyn during the war, couldn't dodge dollars. By the end of the war, the Auditores were worth millions.

Jimmy and Frank worked so hard that neither had much time for the more refined aspects of life. They didn't go to night school. Frank, by his own confession, cannot read ors write today. Jimmy is in little better case. But, as lack of education hadn't interfered with their money-making, so it did not stop them from enjoying life when they had made their money.

Jimmy and Frank Auditore, "millionaire stevedores," looked about them and discovered New York was a very pleasant place in which to play. Broadway, midway of the world, blazed ahead of them.

They didn't play by all the rules of the book of etiquette. Jimmy frequently got into trouble with the police; as he once testified, he'd "been arrested so many times he couldn't remember all of them." And Frank's wife, Mrs. Louise Auditore, sued him for divorce.

But Broadway is often tolerant of good spenders and good fellows. So Broadway smiled and murmured, "Rough diamonds!"

In the winter of 1921-22, Jimmy Auditore gave Broadway something to puzzle about. Mr. Auditore gave a party. It was aboard the S. S. La France in mid-Atlantic, and its aftermath presented Miss Jeanne Eagels, the chic little star, in a real-life role rather more exciting than anything she ever did on the stage.

Miss Eagels was aboard the France with a party of friends, including Louise Groody, another Broadway star; Clifton Webb, the dancer, and Clifton Webb's mother. Jimmy Auditore was a friend of Miss Eagels. Nothing would please him more, he announced, than to be host to her and her companions at a jolly little stateroom supper.

Nobody at the party seems to know exactly what happened shortly after midnight, as the France was plunging along through the black Atlantic—or if they do, they aren't telling. But "somebody"—which is as close to identification as Miss Eagels would admit to the newspapers—had the bad taste to toss her $30,000 diamond necklace overboard!

"I was taking a little stroll on deck," went her guarded account to the press, "when a rough hand reached out of the darkness, tore my rings from my fingers and trampled them all over the deck. And then seized my necklace and threw it right over the rail!"

And, when Miss Eagels agreed the motive couldn't have been robbery, and when the reporters suggested that somebody might have been "mad" at her, and who on earth could it have been? The pretty little star shut tight her lips and refused to say another word.

The mystery of who threw Jeanne Eagels' necklace into the Atlantic Ocean after Jimmy Auditore's deep-sea party, was as much a mystery as ever a few months later, when Broadway was given another startler concerning its pet "rough diamonds." The cause of the startler was not so much Mr. Auditore as it was another of his lady friends, Miss Ethel C. Darrell.

Miss Darrell filed suit for $100,000 damages in the supreme court of New York against the same Jimmy Auditore, charging that he attacked her and jerked from her fingers and shoulders jewels worth that sum belonging to her.

Miss Darrell admitted she and Mr. Auditore had been very good friends. They had even traveled about the country together, she said, while she acted as his private secretary. She failed to state where she got her $100,000 worth of jewels—principally diamonds—but it was brought out in testimony that they were the gift of Mr. Auditore.

It appeared that she and Mr. Auditore, while they were attending the races at Saratoga, had a little tiff. They were in a fashionable club at the time, dining, and Mr. Auditore—so Miss Darrell charged—reached right over the table and banged her in the face and yanked off all her jewels!

"Rough diamond!" murmured Broadway. "Rough ON diamonds, you mean!"

And now, with the return of Frank Auditore from Europe, Broadway is hearing still another story of the original methods used by the "millionaire stevedores" when they desire to get their presents back from ladies. The crux of this story is those romantic round trip pearls.

They were set in a pair of lovely earrings, and they were a prominent item in a list of $100,000 worth of rings, bracelets, dog-collar necklaces and other baubles which went to Europe—and came right back again.

The jewels, declare officials of the United States customs, went to Europe around the neck and fingers and wrists—and on the ears—of dainty Miss Irene Wales, who was known as Irene Broderick when she was with the Ziegfeld Follies. And that's why the customs officials seized the gems when they returned, not with Miss Wales, but in the possession of Mr. Auditore.

The customs officials would have known nothing about the jewels if the newspapers hadn't carried a dispatch from London, published on the day Mr. Auditore sailed, telling the exciting story of how he caught the boat.

Packing in his London hotel, Mr. Auditore discovered he had left a valuable parcel behind him in Paris. He chartered an airplane. He flew to Paris. He got his parcel. He flew back again. He "made" the boat. And what, asked everybody, was in the parcel? Why, answered the newspapers, $100,000 worth of jewels, mostly pearls!

Thus, when Mr. Auditore landed in New York a week later, there was an exciting scene at the docks. His baggage was attached. Officials also attached the baggage of Miss Irene Hayes, pretty New York florist, suspecting at first she had the pearls.

As it turned out, Miss Hayes was only a ship acquaintance of Mr. Auditore and was with him when they disembarked simply because she had offered to help him make out his customs declaration, since Mr. Auditore could not read or write. She was released. So was Mr. Auditore. But not the jewels.

"But I bought them in New York and took them abroad as a present for Miss Wales!" protested Mr. Auditore.

"Our information is that Miss Wales wore the jewels out of the country," replied the customs officials. "It doesn't matter whether they were originally bought in America or not, if you, and not she, brought them back. If the jewels were a present for Miss Wales, why hasn't she got them now?"

Mr. Auditore blinked that question. but it was answered from abroad—by the correspondents. And this was what they said:

Miss Wales did, indeed, have the jewels

Ethel C. Darrell, Whose Suit Against James Auditore Accused Him of Seizing the Jewels He Lavished on Her.

on her in Paris. She glistened with them. But she and Mr. Auditore had a tiff. It might have been brought on by the fact that Miss Wales announced her engagement to Lew Leslie, former husband of Belle Baker, whom she since has married. She and Auditore had the tiff on the steps of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, and some of the observers say the lady herself tore off the jewels and flung them in her admirer's face.

But the story Broadway hears about its second pet "rough diamond" is that he was the aggressor—that he, demanding the return of his presents, did not stand on ceremony, but grabbed them. And the picture Broadway conjures up is of an angry, teary beauty on the steps of the Ritz, with empty arms outstretched and her forlorn eyes fixed on the far horizon, where an airplane is disappearing in the direction of London with Frank Auditore and the jewels—both, as it were, glistening—in the cockpit.

"Rough diamond!" murmurs Broadway again. "Rough on PEARLS, you mean!"

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

STATISTICS show that eighty per cent of the people in the United States like cats, birds and dogs, while the other twenty per cent prefer horses. A horse may make a good pet, but most landlords would object to your keeping one in your apartment.

DOGS are all right, but nobody wants a horse jumping up and down on their furniture.

THEY may be wonderful animals, but it would be very uncomfortable to have one of them lying on the foot of your bed all night.

A DOG comes to the table while you're eating and begs for scraps, but a horse wouldn't eat bones.

OF course they're friendly and affectionate, but just imagine how embarrassed you'd be if some gentleman called on you and your horse jumped up in his lap.

AND no matter how much he loved animals he wouldn't want to take a horse in his arms.

YOU can learn to love them just as much as a dog or cat, but they can't bark every time they hear a burglar.

AND if a horse did bark or meow you'd feel like taking him down to the place where you bought him and getting your money back.

A LOT of people like cows, too, both for pets and for giving milk; but it's awfully hard to keep one, as most apartments only have a kitchenette.

AND a cow can't very well sleep behind the stove when you just have a two-burner gas plate.

NOT only that, but they're hard to feed; it's impossible to make them eat doc biscuits.

BALANCE WORK AND PLAY AND DON'T OVER DO EITHER.

To be so tired and worn out that you must allow yourself more rest in your free hours is nothing to worry about.

It is a good thing to be tired and realize it and take the needed rest.

You know that between your work and the energy you often expend in your favorite line of amusement, you have gone for weeks, just dragging yourself about.

The excitement of your play kept you going at high speed, but as this excitement is lacking in your work you have laughed on the job.

If a time comes when you must do less playing in order to get the required rest to keep up with the job you have, it is a good thing.

"When nature warns one must heed," is the maxim you had better follow.

One day last year while visiting the home of a deceased friend, I saw a tall, stout man resembling the husband of my dead friend. Going up to him, I said: "I'm awfully sorry your wife is dead. You'll excuse me in not having come to see her."

He answered half-choked: "Why, you must be mistaken; my wife is on her vacation in New Jersey."

Imagine my embarrassment at my mistake. I hastily excused myself and hastened from the room.

A young Irishman having accidentally broken a pane in the window of a house in Queen street, ran away as fast as he could. He was followed by the proprietor and seized. "You broke my window, fellow, did you not?" asked the proprietor. "To be sure I did," said Pat, "and did you not see me running home for the money to pay for it?" Gailbert Laferriere.

This morning, my young son, three years old wanted to go out. As it was early and rather cold I told him to wait until the sun came out. He remained around for a while and then came back and said: "Mudder, I wish that old sun would hurry up and get up; it's been asleep long enough."
